MAN DROWNED AS HIS FRIENDS TRY TO AID HIM

George Thaler, Chemist, Dives Into Patuxent to Retrieve Hat.

OTHERS IN PARTY REPORT HIS DEATH

DELAY IN FILING NOTICE EXPERIENCED

Pair Who Were on Launch Return to City and Report to Landlord.

George Thaler, 29, chemist in the department of enamels at the Bureau of Standards, was drowned in the Patuxent River, near Solomon, Md., early yesterday, friends with whom he was fishing reported when they returned yesterday afternoon.

Willard Criswell, 22, of 3432 Connecticut avenue, also a chemist at the Bureau of Standards, a member of the fishing party, said that Thaler was drowned when he dived into the river to recover a hat which had blown into the water. He related that Thaler had been saying he was going to take a swim, so when the hat, which belonged to another member of the party, blew into the river he hurriedly removed his trousers and dived into the stream. The current carried both Thaler and the hat about 100 yards down the river, he continued, but Thaler retrieved it only to discover that he could not swim against the current.

Criswell said that he seemed to be in no immediate danger, so they shouted for him to "take it easy" and they would pick him up in the boat. Criswell declared they hurriedly drew in their lines, lifted the anchor, turned the 28-foot launch around and went to his rescue. When they finally overtook Thalen, who was drifting with the current, Criswell said it was evident Thalen was almost exhausted, and before they could rescue him he went down and did not come up. He estimated it took them about 4 minutes to turn the launch around and get to Thalen.

River 50 Feet Deep.

According to Criswell, the river is about 50 feet deep at the place where the man drowned. As there is no Coast Guard on the river, Criswell said they did not know what to do, but went to Solomon, consulted with a physician and then reported the tragedy to a justice of the peace. He declared the justice told them there was nothing they could do to recover the body, as the river was entirely too deep to dredge. He advised them, Criswell said, to report the accident to the man's family. Acting on this advice, he continued, they returned to Washington, went to the home of F. T. DeBerritz, 1429 Twenty-first street northwest, where Thalen lived, secured the name of the youth's mother, who lives in Calmar, Iowa, and wired her.

Criswell said that J. O. Burton, also a chemist at the Bureau of Standards, and another man whom he did not know, went with Thaler and him on the fishing trip. He said they drove Thaler's car, and arrived at Solomon Island about 7:30 p. m. Soon after arriving, he related, they met another four-man fishing party, and they joined that group in renting the launch on which they spent the night fishing. He declared he did not know any of the members of the other party.

DeBerritz said the boys told him about the drowning about 2 p. m. yesterday, and asked for the mother's address so they could wire her. Later he reported the case to Washington police, and he also wrote the mother a special delivery letter telling all he knew about the reported drowning.

Criswell Explains.

He declared Thaler left late Saturday saying he was going fishing. DeBerritz said he notified police because he had only the story of the boys who were practical strangers to him, and he had noticed they had returned neither Thaler's car nor his clothes.

Criswell, however, explained that they stopped at the Bureau of Standards when they returned and washed up, then used his car in going to the place where Thaler roomed. He also said both he and Thaler usually left their cars in a shed at the bureau, and he had merely used his own car because he was more accustomed to driving it.

According to DeBerritz, Thaler was an excellent young man. He was studious, DeBerritz said, and had no bad habits. He had lived with DeBerritz for more than a year.

Both Thaler and Criswell are civil service men at the bureau. Criswell said his home was in Waco, Tex. DeBerritz is a language teacher at the Kingsley High School during the regular term, and at present is teaching in the summer school.

Plunge Down Stairs Fatal to Midshipman

Son of Maj. A. B. Drum, Appointed from District in 1927, Leaps from Officer's Side to Death in Dormitory with Suicidal Intent, Annapolis Report Says.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 4.—What was reported to be a jump with suicidal intent down a marble stairway at Bancroft Hall dormitory, at the Naval Academy proved fatal late last night to Andrew Boggs Drum, jr., of the class of 1931. The youth, who was 20 year sold, died in the Naval Hospital at 3:40 o'clock this morning.

While a great deal of mystery surrounds the circumstances of Drum's death, Rear Admiral S. S. Robison, superintendent of the academy, admitted he understood that the youth had "deliberately jumped" from the railing of the stairway while in the company of an officer of the school.

Drum is the son of Maj. Andrew B. Drum, of the U. S. Marine Corps on duty in China. He was admitted to the academy oh June 14, 1927, from Washington, as an appointee of President Coolidge. He formerly lived in the National Capital and had a circle of friends there.

An investigation into the midshipman's death was launched immediately by a board headed by Commander Robert B. Rogers. A formal report will be made tomorrow morning.

No reason for Drum's act could be learned from academy officials tonight Admiral Robinson said that he could not disclose any more details regarding the case until after the board had reported. He said that he did not know the name of the officer with the youth at the time and he declined to reveal why the boy was in the company of the officer.

Drum roomed by himself, it was learned, and may have been the victim of moroseness.

The report of Drum's death first was to the effect that it was accidental. He was reported to have taken ill during the night and was on his way to receive medical treatment.

The fall of virtually one story, from near the top of the stairway, resulted in several skull fractures and severe concussions. The youth did not regain consciousness.

GROCERY PLANT IS DAMAGED BY $50,000 BLAZE

14 Companies Fight Stubborn Flames in Dyer Building.

FIRE SPREADS RAPIDLY IN WHOLESALE HOUSE

Two Adjoining Structures Suffer Slight Loss From Water.

SMOKE DRAWS BIG CROWDS TO SCENE

Great Excitement Caused and Traffic Blocked in Street.

A four-alarm fire of undetermined origin yesterday afternoon destroyed miscellaneous foodstuffs valued at approximately $50,000 in the building occupied by J. E. Dyer & Co., wholesale grocers, at 3330 M street northwest, swept the interior of the structure and resulted in a small water damage to merchandise in adjoining buildings endangered for a time.

The first alarm, turned in from a street signal box at 3:45 o'clock, was followed in quick succession by three separate alarms which brought to the scene a total of twelve fire companies, two truck companies and Fire Chief George S. Watson, in addition to a number of police reserves who hastened there to form a guard line for the large crowds.

Apparently starting near the center of the second floor of the two-story brick and frame building, the blaze had gained rapid headway before the first engine company men arrived to spread out a network of water lines for several blocks. The tiers of boxed foodstuffs quickly ignited and the blaze spread throughout the first floor, huge billows of creamy white smoke from the assorted edibles rising high into the air.

Smoke Hampers Firemen.

The structure spasmodically was enveloped in the dense smoke, through which flames occasionally shot out, and firemen were handicapped to some extent in fighting the stubborn blaze. They succeeded at the outset, however, in blocking the spread across a tin-covered elevated passageway conecting the second floor of the main building to the second floor of a two-story outer structure, in which was stored quantities of other foodstuffs, according to fire reports.

Centering their fight on the main building, firemen gradually brought the blaze under control, but not before flames had eaten their way into the two-story establishment of H. Hardee, malt and hops dealer, next door at 3328 M street, and into the two-story building occupied by Potomac Peanuts, at 3332 M street northwest. The proprietors of both these adjoining structures succeeded in saving a considerable portion of their belongings, and the damage, all caused by the water, was declared to have been comparatively small.

Robert F. Dyer, president of the company and coowner with his brother, Frank Dyer, sons of the deceased founder of the well-known firm, declared that the damage probably would aggregate $50,000. He said that insurance was carried on a large part of the stock, and possibly the entire amount.

Fire Causes Excitement.

According to Chief Watson, the damaged structure was erected about 10 or 11 years ago after a fire had destroyed the previous building, which had gone through an earlier and more disastrous conflagration along that strip of the block.

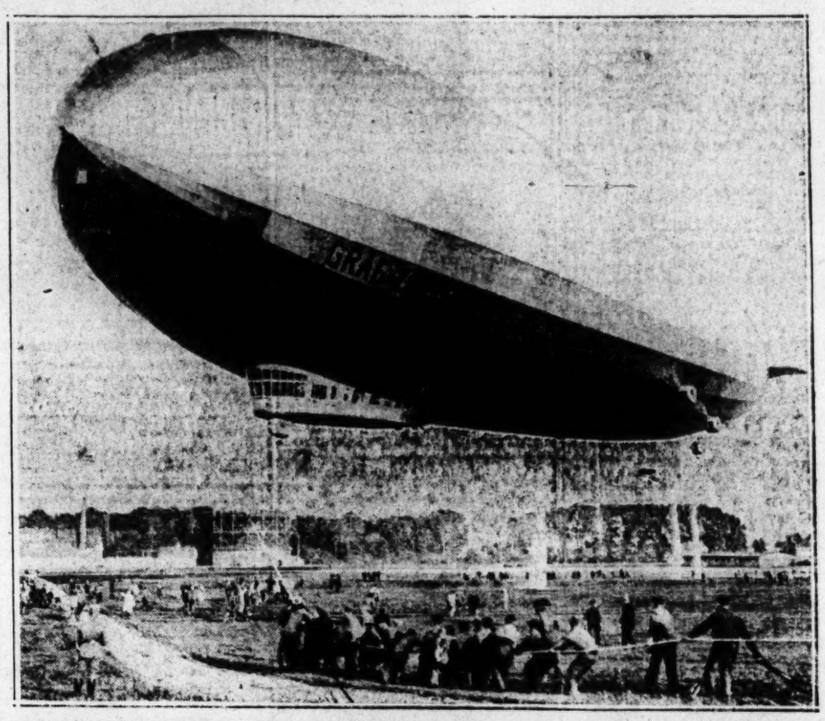
Considerable excitement was caused by the response of the fire companies on the four separate alarms and by the clouds of smoke which were fanned high into the air, attracting hundreds of motorists and pedestrians who lined the nearby streets for several blocks. Traffic was blocked completely at the time of the fire as far distant as Pennsylvania avenue and M street, and automobiles for a considerable dstance were held up on both sides of the Key Bridge until the blaze was declared out.

Passengers Rob Taxi Driver of $5 and Ring

After riding for some time in a taxicab last night, two men held up John T. Robertson, 39 years old, of 715 Sixth street northwest, the driver, and robbed him of $5 and a gold ring. They then too him for a short ridek and later threw him into the street. The cab was found abandoned by police.

The taxi driver took the men to three addresses before they displayed two guns at Union and N streets southwest. One of the men kept a gun pointed at him in the back seat of the cab, while the other robber drove the car to First and L streets southwest. The cab was found on H street, between Third and Four-and-a-half streets.

ZEPPELIN IS MOORED TO MAST AT LAKEHURST AFTER CROWDS IN NEW YORK SEE GIANT CRAFT



The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, which yesterday completed another flight from Germany to America.

Dirigible Lands 95 Hours and 40 Minutes After Leaving Germany.

SHIP SINKS TO EARTH IN BEAUTIFUL MANNER

Three of 19 Passengers Dissent When Others Report Good Time.

STOWAWAY IS SEIZED AND HURRIED TO JAIL

Wilkins Asserts He Learned Little by Trip He Did Not Already Know.

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—At 8:52 o'clock (E. S. T.) tonight, 95 hours and 40 minutes after leaving Friedrichshafen for her second voyage to America, the Graf Zeppelin, German mistress of the skies, touched earth again at the Lakehurst naval air station in one of the most beautiful landings the field has ever witnessed.

The big ship settled softly to the ground after one leisurely circle of the airdrome, following her return here from the flight over New York. Dr. Hugo Eckener, her commander, brought the big airship over the field two hours earlier, thus completing his transatlantic crossing in exactly 93 hours, but he could not resist the temptation to take the greatest airship in the world over New York in greeting to the city's millions.

Twice before he has done the same thing, once when he brought the Z-R 3, now the Los Angeles, here for delivery to the Navy Department in 1924, and again last October, when the Graf Zeppelin came into port crippled and hopelessly lats on one first crossing, but not so badly off that Eckener could resist his passion of pride and showmanship or the desire to show the world that his craft was far better than it had imagined.

Lights Are Sighted.

The lights of the airship, returning to the naval station from New York, first were sighted at 8:29 (E. S. T.), just 95 hours from the moment that she last touched earth in Germany. Twenty minutes later she had maneuvered gracefully into the wind, sinking nearer and nearer to the earth until the landing ropes were dropped with a soft hiss from the cabin and pounced upon by the waiting ground crew 50 feet below.

Another five minutes and the spreading network of landing lines had brought the Zeppelin safely to the ground in a brilliant diffused glare of a battery of flood lights on the edge of the field.

Orders were shouted and repeated, bells clanged in remote engine cars of the airship and motors roared in response, holding the dirigible in position despite the stiff wind which still blew across the field. The ground crew began walking the ship toward the stub mooring mast, where she was to remain through the night unless the wind fell enough to warrant bringing her in beside the Los Angeles in the hangar.

Eckener Shouts Greeting.

Dr. Eckener's ruddy face, topped by his air-yachtsman's cap, appeared at the cabin door in the glare of the floodlights. He smiled and waved, but he had only time to shout that he had had a wonderful crossing, before his duties claimed him once more.

The passengers appeared at the lighted cabin window and waved to friends who managed, somehow, to break through police lines formed by bogs, Marines and State troopers. They seemed a much happier lot than the ones who came in last year on the storm-battered dirigible and insisted that everything had gone smoothly on the four-day trip through the skies.

As soon as the Zeppelin was secured to the stub mast the pas-

PRIMARY TO BE NEW SORT FOR VIRGINIANS

Election Will Be Start of Campaign Instead of End of It.

CANNON FIGHTS FOR LIFE

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 4.—Virginia moves up into the major leagues of politics Tuesday. The Democratic primary then will be but the beginning of the campaign in this State not the end of it, as it has been in years past.

All sides agree that the campaign that has been proceeding among John Garland Pollard, G. Walter Mapp and Rosewell Page is but the prologue of one of the warmest fights this State has ever had, exceeded in intensity somewhat by the campaign last fall, but one which quite possibly can change the destiny of this State.

So well is this recognized to be true that the most inveterate politicians have been unable to work up any great enthusiasm about Tuesday's result. They are awaiting the result to see what it reveals for the future. After Tuesday's returns are in, with Pollard the winner unless a great silent vote comes out for Mapp, then it is to be a case of all hands turning to, the hired and volunteer hands of the Democratic party, the zealous workers of Bishop James Cannon, jr.

It should be understood that the bishop is fighting for his political life in this State. Contrary to the general belief, he did not seek this fight. He did not turn his back on his old friend G. Walter Mapp out of a spirit of ungratefulness, as many would have you think.

The bishop realized purely and simply that after his last fall's doings the Democratic party was through with him.

There were influential forces that had long wanted to shake him out of the party. They had felt nim a heavy load on their necks. Some inner council, however, always kept them quiet.

When the bishop broke away from the party and went to Hoover, it gave these old enemies the opportunity

YOUNG PLAN PARLEY TO OPEN TOMORROW

Delegates Reach The Hague for Final Conference on Reparations.

RHINELAND PROBLEM UP

The Hague, Holland, Aug. 4 (A.P.) Delegations from Great Britain France, Germany, Belgium, Italy and Japan, with an observer from the United States, are beginning to assemble here for the international conference opening on Tuesday to decide whether the Young plan for reparations payments shall replace the Dawes plan which has been in operation for the past five years. It also is hoped to decide finally the question of evacuation of the Rhineland.

The progress of the discussions is not likely to be easy. The difficulties in securing agreements among the experts in Paris on the Young plan are fully expected to be encountered again here. The British government has a strong conviction that it was unfairly discriminated against in the readjustment of the Spa ratios for distributing the German payments among the allies. France is determined to agree to complete evacuation of the Rhineland only if she thereby obtains a good bargain in the realm of reparations.

There is general agreement among all powers concerned to reduction of German liability under the Young proposals, but none of the powers are yet committed to acceptance of the proposals in their present form.

London, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Arthur Henderson, foreign minister, and W. Graham, president of the board of trade, with their secretarial staffs, left here today for the Hague to attend the conference on application of the Young reparations plan which opens there Tuesday.

The British Chancellor of the Exchequer already has outlined in the House of Commons his opposition to the idea that Great Britain should be the sole loser by reduction of German payments, and Philip Snowden is expected to take a firm stand in favor of some modification.

France on her side is expected to

SLAYER OF DEPUTY BELIEVED KNOWN

Officials Begin Man-Hunt Today After Shooting on Still Raid.

SIX IN FREDERICK JAIL

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 4.—Sheriff William C. Roderick and Detective Daugherty, Baltimore, will leave here tomorrow on a hunt for a man believed to have been the slayer of Deputy Sheriff Clyde L. Hauver, who was shot from ambush and almost instantly killed while in a raid on a still near Thurmont Wednesday evening. The officers believe that when they get this man the mystery surrounding the crime will be solved.

The funeral of Deputy Hauver took place from his home on West South street yesterday within a block of the jail where six men are being held in connection with the crime.

Flowers, tributes of many friends, were piled about the casket. Following a service at the house by the Rev. Paul Delauter, of the Luthern Church, the body was taken to Mount Olivet Chapel, where the Rev. Chalmers W. Walck, of Grace Reformed Church, eulogized the deceased.

Honorary palibearers were Chief of Police Martin J. Walsh, Policemen Jesse P. Schell, Allen Bartgis and Vernon Smith, State Police J. O. Shockley, C. T. Cubbage and Henry Nusz, Sheriff Roderick, Deputies Ira Root, John T. Hemp and William O. Wertenbaker, States Attorney William M. Storm, Magistrates Alton Y. Bennett and Sherman P. Bowers and A. M. Adendschein; active, Deputy Sheriffs Verner Redmond and William F. Steiner, Sergt. J. J. Cassidy and Thomas R. Blizzard, and State Police Howard B. Smith and Daniel D. Wilson.

Lester Clark, alias Bennett, about 38, was arrested in a woods near Hagerstown by Deputy Sheriff Charles Cushwa and Detective Daughter, and taken to the scene of the shooting yesterday, where he is said to have pointed out to the officers the positions of the moonshiners when they fired on the raiding deputies. He is alleged to have told the officers that

Alexandria Youth Shot by Own Gun

Jack Crouse, 11, Wounded in Stomach While Hunting Rats at Culpeper.

While hunting rats on his uncle's farm at Culpeper, Va., Jack Crouse, 11 years old, of King street, Alexandria, Va., was accidentally shot yesterday afternoon by his own gun. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital in a private ambulance. His condition was undetermined at an early hour this morning.

Crouse, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs John D. Crouse, had gone to Culpeper with his parents and was having a great time until the accident. The gun, a 22 caliber rifle, is said to have discharged when the boy leaned over the barrel mouth while the butt was on the ground.

The bullet entered his stomach just below the belt line and tore its way upward. Dr. M. D. Delaney, who was in charge of the case, said that while the boy was seriously injured he thought his life may be saved.

Britten's Wife Better After Operation at Sea

Southampton, England, Aug. 4 (A. P.).—Fred A. Britten, chairman of the House fo Representatives naval affairs committee, told the Associated Press today that his wife had had a good night and was much better today.

Mrs. Britten was operated on for appendicitis in mid-Atlantic, the Leviathan stopping for an hour en route here from New York to permit the operation to be performed. He completed arrangements for her to be transfrered to a nursing home here next Tuesday.

MORE THAN 20,000 SEE ZEPPELIN LAND

Crowd Is Orderly in Contrast to Serious Congestion of Last Year.

TRAFFIC KEEPS MOVING

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—A holiday-spirited crowd of 20,000 to 25,000 persons camped out on the huge Lakehurst Field all day today, making the best of the cool day On the field itself there was no serious congestion until close to the time for appearance of the dirigible.

Conditions contrasted with last year at the time of the Zeppelin's arrival. More than 100,000 persons then jammed the field, and starved most of the day, sandwiches and hot dogs bringing gold-rush prices.

Remembering last year's battle for nourishment, thousands of ambitious hot corn venders, soda dispensers and bologna barkers were on hand, hoping to make enough to start them on the road to financial independence. As the day wore on and the tens of thousands failed to appear, they found themselves doing about as well as they would have at Coney Island.

Every one fraternized and made merry. Families held reunions all day. Basket lunches were spread out everywhere. At 4 p. m. Capt. M. O. Nichol, of the State Police, estimated there were 25,000 on hand. At 11 a. m. there were only 15,000.

Police overcame traffic difficulties as easily as they would have at a baseball game. Having prepared for another 100,000, they allotted large spaces near the field for parking. Between 2,000 and 3,000 cars were on hand late in the afternoon.

Appearance of the Zeppelin above the field shortly before sunset caused a concerted rush toward the hangar

Chinese Tong War Looms In Wake of Two Murders

Slayings in Boston and Chicago Believed to Presage New Outbreak.

New York, Aug. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Murder of two Chinese, one a member of the On Leong Tong in Boston and the other of the Hip Sing Tong in Chicago, spread an alarm in Chinatown today that another tong war had started. Detectives of the Elizabeth street station noted that peace flags which ordinarily fly from poles at the headquarters of the On Leon Tong on Mott street and of the Hip Sing on Pell street were not flying and reported it. Fifteen extra patrolmen were immediately assigned to Chinatown, going on duty at 2 a. m.

Several Federal narcotic agents appeared in Chinatown with daylight today, and the report spread that a dispute had arisen among the Chinese over the opium trade. Recent seizures of opium in Newark, N. J., led to belief that a scrap may have arisen out of a tip-off by rivals.

Shortly after 9 a. m. today Inspector McAuliffe, of the second division, and a dozen extra detectives joined those already on duty, and

More Police Stationed In Capital's Chinatown

Fear that the tong war which broke forth in New York and Chicago yesterday might spread to Washington's Chinatown led to the assignment of a special detail of four extra policemen from the Sixth Precinct station to the Chinese quarter last night.

Rumors that trouble was brewing in the vicinity of 325 to 335 Pennsylvania avenue northwest recalled the outbreak on October 14, 1928, which resulted in the slaying of two Chinese and the wounding of two others as the members of the On Leong and the Hip Sing tons clashed. The casualties were in the Hip Sing group.

The local uprising, which followed the tong battles that took seven lives in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, brought about another truce which has not since been broken. Charlie Wen, On Leong leader, and Lew Toy, Hip Sing official, promised the police here that there would be no further slayings.

Cool Day Sends Hoover And Party on Long Hike

Exhilarating Weather Greets President at Retreat in Blue Ridge Mountains; Discusses Problems With Department Heads; Returns Early Today.

(Associated Press.)

Secluded in his mountain lodge near here, President Hoover had arranged last night to return to the White House early this morning after enjoying one of the coolest week-ends of the summer in his retreat.

Most of the members of the party, including the host, took advantage of the exhilarating weather yesterday to go on a long tramp through the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, in which the camp is located. When they were in camp, however, the President and the others were following with millions of others all over the world the progress of the great Zeppelin as it battled its way up the Atlantic Coast. Reports obtained at the White House and transmitted to the camp kept them informed.

While the temperatures permitted thorough enjoyment of the holidays, not all of the time was devoted to recreation. The President had taken with him on the trip Postmaster General Brown, Attorney General Mitchell and Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, with whom he expected to discuss the problems of their departments. Plans for reduction of the mounting Postoffice deficit and the Leavenworth Prison riots were topics for consideration.

Trailing the rest of the party, Chairman Smoot of the Senate tariff committee, retreated Saturday morning into the seclusion of the camp and took with him his proposed sliding scale sugar tariff which he intended to explain for the benefit of the President.

Others who made the trip were Mrs. Hoover, Allan Hoover, Mrs. Brown, wife of the Postmaster-General; Mrs. Hines, wife of the Veterans' Bureau head; Lawrence Richey, of the White House secretarial staff, and Mrs. Richey; Mary Sullivan, a newspaper writer, and Lieut. Comdr. Joel T. Boone, physician to the President.

sengers filed out of the cabin into a waiting bus and were whisked off the post welfare building with their baggage for the customs examination. The immigration and health officials had boarded the airship almost as soon as she touched the ground and were through with their formalities in a short time.

Stowaway Is Arrested.

The stowaway was placed under arrest and taken out of the airship and hurried off under guard to the Toms River Jail, according to Marine Capt. Ward. The only other infromation forthcoming concerning him was that he was about 20 and would be hailed before a special board, probobly being returned to Germany without the press having any opportunity to interview and glorify him. His name, it was said, was not even known.

Capt. Sir George Hubert Wilkins, Arctic and Antarctic flier, who was aboard the Zeppelin, was asked by an acquaintance what he had learned by the trip that he did not know before.

"Very little," he replied.

Three of the nineteen passengers raised a feebly dissenting voice in the general chorus of "a good time was had by all." They said dirigible travel had its drawbacks and one of them was airsick. Practically all seized cigarettes proffered them as soon as they were a safe distance from the airship and sucked at them ravenously.

Crew f 41 Carried.

In addition to the passengers and the stowaway, the Graf Zeppelin carried a crew of 41 officers and men.

Floyd Gibbons and his two "antenna bearers" were a feature of the show preliminary to the landing of the airship. With a portable short wave radio broadcasting set strapped to his chest, the famous war correspondent strode back and forth in the area set apart for the landing and broadcast an eye witness account of the proceedings. His assistants bore an aerial aloft two fish pole masts, each of them having a body guard designated by those in charge. The broadcast was picked up by a receiving set on the roof of the giant hangar and put out in amplified form through a loud speaker for the benefit of a few thousand persons who stayed on for the landing after most of the crowd had departed following the ship's departure for New York. The Gibbons' broadcast also was rebroadcast over the National Broadcasting hook-up which reported a running story of the events at Lakehurst.

Third Crossing in Year.

Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin, mighty German monarch of the air, landed on American soil today, completing its third crossing of the Atlantic within a year.

Last October the huge dirigible completed its first round trip from its base at Friedrichshafen, Germany, to the great Navy reservation here, where the naval dirigible Los Angeles has its home.

At 5:55 o'clock (Eastern standard time) this afternoon a speck was sighted fourteen miles away to the East by Coxswain William Bishop, lookout man for the Los Angeles, and half an hour later the huge silver big bag poked its shining nose into the sunset over the field.

5,331 Miles Covered.

Authorities estimated the Graf traveled 5,331 miles on its latest voyage, including the side trip to New York City, in 94 hours 1 minute, as compared with the 109 hours 58 minutes required to cvoer a course of 6,275 miles to New York last year. The official time for the last westward flight was 111½ hours.

When the Graf takes of on its return trip it will be starting a cruise around the world which will be followed next spring by a transarctic exploration cruise. Pending decision by Dr. Hugo Eckener, the Graf's skipper, it was not known when the return would be made to Friedrichshafen, the first of four stops on the world journey.

This westward crossing was far more successful than the last, a broken water tank that wet a cabin roof being the most untoward incident. Some bad weather was encountered, but none of it was like the damaging gale of October or the storm that buffeted the ship about southern France after it had turned back on a transatlantic fligh tin May because of motor trouble.

Special Train Ready.

Dr. Eckener, college professor turned Zeppelin pioneer in association with the late Count Zeppelin after whom the airship is named, and the eighteen passengers he carried at $2,000 a ticket, immediately on landing, became the object of more than a score of newspaper men seeking interviews, customs and immigration agents. A special train was engaged to carry the passengers to New York. The stowaway, who hid in the bag of the dirigible until it had left Friedrichshafen, received attention from the authorities, although it was believed his case would be left in the hands of German officials for disposition after he is returned posthaste—by steamship—to Germany.

The Zeppelin carried 15 sacks of mail, considerable freight, 600 canaries, a baby gorilla and a young chimpanzee, the birds and the animals being consigned to a New York animal dealer.

Disappointment was widespread in Washington yesterday when the Graf Zeppelin failed to pass within discernible distance of the Capital. Thousands of Washingtonians spnet the day watching for the huge dirigible from points of elevation, many of them camping in the vicinity of the Capitol, the Congressional Library and the Washington Monument.

Telephone calls poured into The Post by the hundreds until late in the night asking about the progress of the giant air liner. Many persons did not abandon hope of catching a glimpse of the airship until dusk. The fact that the craft passed over Washington on its first flight to the United States stimulated their hope.

Word came at 11 o'clock yesterday morning that the Zeppelin was heading direct for the Capital, but the Navy Department received a messag at 2:02 p. m. that Capt. Eckener had changed his course and was proceeding straight to Lakehurst.

RADIOPHONE PLANE GREETS BIG AIRSHIP

Fliers' Talk With Associated Press Official From Air Is Broadcast.

PILOT CIRCLES ZEPPELIN

Alongside Graf Zeppelin Over American Coast, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—(By radia telephone to the Associated Press)—Greeted i nair by this flying telephone booth as it neared its destination, the Graf Zeppelin, largest ship ever to sail the skies, paid its second visit to America today.

Wt hthe afternoon sun flashing from her silver flanks the majestic dirigible from Germany rode like some giant knight in shining armor above the last few miles of the ocean. Although at close range her bulk seemed to fill the firmament, the queen of the ocean skies moved through the air, under guidance of her crew of two score, as gracefully as a woman crossing a drawing room.

This telephone plane, the same one from which reporters recently conversed from the air above New Jersey with their offices in New York and London, left Hadley Field, N. J., today on receipt of information by the Western Electric Company, its operators, that the Graf Zeppelin was only 200 miles away.

Description Is Broadcast.

During its flight, a radio announcer broadcast over a nationwide hook-up direct from the plane and news stories were telephone to New York, this also being put on the air for radio listeners.

Half an hour after leaving Hadley, Capt. Ray Brooks, hicef pilot for the Bell Telephone Laboratories, pointed through the shimmer of the plane's propellor and grinned. Out on the horizon was a smudge no bigger than a puff of smoke from a man's pipe. As plane and dirigible rushed toward each other, however, the Graf grew like the Geni of Alladin's Lamp.

It assumed definite outline and was successively a minnow, a shark, a whale, and then the sun ran a yellow finger down its back and suddenly it was silhouetted in gold against the blue-black drop of the sky, a sailor's dream come true.

Radio and Land Wires.

In the telephone plane W. W. Chaplin called the long lines operator of the telephone company and by radio and land wires was connected with Foster Hailey, of the A. P. city desk in New York.

While the broadcasting and telephoning was going on Capt. Brooks circled his plane about the dirigible and at the windowe of the great ship could be seen the faces of the eighteen passengers who had made the 4,000-mile flight from Friedrichshafen.

Efforts to establish communication with the Graf and thus broadcast a conversation between the plane and the great dirigible were unavailing, all radio equipment on the Graf apparently being used to determine landing conditions and to announce Capt. Eckener's intention to fly over New York before landing.

which the Zeppelin will occupy with the dirigible Los Angeles. Police were hard put to it for 5or 10 minutes to hold the crowd, which made up in strength of muscle and lungs whtt it lacked in number.

When the Zeppelin continued straight over Lakehurst toward New York, the lusty cheers changed to a gradually rising groan. The groan changed into an enormous crowd laugh when the crowd awoke to the fact that Dr. Eckener, of the Zep, was just playing a joke on them and would be back in an hour or two after circling New York.

Most of the cars that made the trip to Lakehurst had to go over the highway from Lakewood. Capt. Nicnol assigned 75 patrolmen to the road. They kept traffic moving at a quick pace which contrasted with the hopeless congestion of last year.

After parking in the mile square parking area allotted to them three-quarters of a mile from the field, the motorist spectators proceeded on foot to allotted sections of the field. There they found 300 of the Marines to chaperone them into their proper standing ground. The Navy group of 200, permanently assigned to Lakehurst, and another crowd of 50 sailors from Philadelphia stationed themselves about the field all day.

Thirteen customs inspectors under William H. Beister, deputy collector of customs in Philadelphia, stood ready to give the Zeppelin passengers and crew a speedier and less annoying examination than they got last year. Trucks stood in readiness to tak the baggage to a nearby railway station. Buses stood by al day to rush passengers and crew from the field.

The crowds passed in and out of the hangar looking at the Los Angeles. Among the notables at the field were Dr. Heuser, representing the German Embassy in Washington, and Consuls Schwartz and Gyssling.

MURDERS FORECAST CHINESE TONG WAR

watched the roofs and cellar entry ways for snipers.

Tension prevailed among the 2,000 Chinese who came and went from the second annual convention of the Lee Association of America.

Chicago, Aug. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Two leading Chinese tongs grabbed guns here today and declared war. Yee Sun, said to be a bad man of the Hip Sing, wandered carelessly over into the territory of the On Leong Tong on Archer avenue and Twenty-second street and fell dead with three bullets through his head and heart. The assassin tossed his weapon beside the body and fled.

Several Chinese, among them Ding Wing, also Hip Singer, saw the killing. Frank Moy, the unofficial mayor of Chinatown and a leader of the On Leongs, warned all his men to stay in their own territory. Contrary to the city, State and Federal laws the Chinamen have divided the city into war zones. Members of rival tongs can not enter each other's zone without danger of sudden death.

"This war is real," said Frank Moy in appealing to Deputy Police Commissioner Stege for police aid to suppress reprisal by Hip Sings. "The war broke out in Boston last night and we heard about it, but did not expect it to start here. I told all the members of the On Leong Tong to keep away from State street and we don't want any Hip Sing men around our places on Archer avenue."

The body of Yee Sun was carried over to the Hip Sing terrain on State street. There the news caused much excitement. Reserves of police were sent into the two war zones. Ding Wing, who had seen Yee Sun drop on hostile territory, ran breathless into a squad of police and said the killer was at that moment among the Hip Sings watching for a chance to kill others. He pointed out a young Chinaman, smoking cigarettes with his back against a building. He was arrested and identified as the assassin by Ding. The prisoner said his name was Joe Tuck, admitted that he was an On Leong, but denied he had shot Yee Sun. He was not armed. Lee Loy, secretary of the Hip Sings, said Joe Tuck was a gunman.

Man Wounded Twice, Result of Altercation

Ernest Duggins, 34, colored, was shot through the right shoulder and am during an altercation with William Spriggs, 38, colored, at Takoma Park, Md., shortly after nooon yesterday. Duggins was taken to Walter Reed hospital where his wounds were treated. Spriggs was arrested by Montgomery County police, and is being held at the Takoma Park jail.

Police said Spriggs used a .38 caliber revolver and shot Duggins twice.

Belgians Recall Halt To German Invasion

Brussels, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Tolling bells, sirens and salvos of artillery fire reminded Belgians today of the fifteenth anniversary of the invasion of Belgium by the German Imperial armies after they had been refused permission to pass through the country to combat the French.

The population today observed a minute's silence throughout the country. Roman Catholic priests in many cases referred to the date in their sermons.

Seven Farmers Killed As War Shell Explodes

Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Seven farmers were killed today by explosion of a shell they found on the old battlefield at the village of Latnics, near Lemberg.

They unscrewed the fuse cap to take off the copper parts and the explosion followed. Several other persons were injured.

Massachusetts Town Has Flarry of Snow

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Snow fell for five minutes at 6:40 o'clock tonight in State street over an area of about 300 feet. The sun was shining at the time.

Records show that snow fell here in July of last year and June of the year before.

OFFICIALS SEEK MAN IN KILLING OF DEPUTY

he was at the still when the raid took place, but denied that he fired the shot that killed Hauver.

After going over the ground at the still he was lodged in jail. The officers are seeking the other man on the information given by Clark.

Others Held in Jail.

Others in jail held as witnesses are Paul and Floyd Williams, North Carolina; Russell Bennett, Hagerstown; Oscar McAfee and Lloyd Lewis, near Thurmont. William P. Miller and Waverly Bennett, reputed owners of the still, are at liberty under $2,500 bond, charged with the manufacture of liquor.

All the prisoners deny they fired any shots. Lloyd Lewis has a bullet wound in his arm, inflicted by one of the deputies when he started to run after Hauver was shot. He was trailed a short distance by Deputy Redmond, before he disappeared in the underbrush. McAfee claims he had nothing to do with the shooting.

Charles Lewis, who, it is alleged, informed the moonshiners of the raid, denied that he carried any information from the sheriff's office to the still. He was taken in custody a short distance from the still after Hauver was shot and brought to jail and soon afterward released.

New York Gravediggers Vote to Continue Strike

New York, Aug. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Declaring they would "hang together lest they hang separately," and characterizing as false a statement issued today by James P. O'Hara, superintendent of Holy Cross Cemetery, Brooklyn, the striking grave diggers and other workers of Calvary Cemetery, Queens, voted at a meeting today to continue their strike openly but without violence.

Those present were chiefly strikers who had congregated there after their day of picketing. It was decided to picket all day tomorrow, and arrangements were made for relieving the various shifts of pickets to permit them to attend church.

DEADLOCK REACHED IN ZION CONGRESS

COALITION MOVE BALKED

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 4 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The Sixteenth Zionist congress found itself after the week-end without an agreement having been reached on the composition of the new Zionist executive.

The proposal to create a coalition executive committee, including Representatives of the right, left and center parties, was frustrated because the Palestine labor groups oppose the nomination of Harry Sacher, British barrister, who was at the head of the Zionist executive in Jerusalem for the past two years. His strong hand in enforcing a stringent fiscal policy and in opposing social reforms in the colonization projects offended labor. Dr. Chaim Welzmann, confronted with this situation, declared that the responsibility rests on the committee on committees.

Two Candidates Favored.

The candidates favored by the labor groups in preference to Mr. Sacher are Dr. Arthur Ruppin, agricultural expert, and M. M. Ussishkin, veteran Zionist leader.

A problem of considerable interest also arose in regard to the demand of the American delegation representing the Zionist organization of America, under the present arrangements the American nonzionists were given 44 seats on the council of the extended jewish agency which is to be formed here on August 11, while the American Zionists will be represented by only sixteen edlegates on the council. The Zionists demand they be given equal representation with the non-Zionists, which creates a difficult situation in view of the fact that the council will consist of 220 members, of which the Zionists may elect only 110 from all countries.

Opposition to Stay Away.

The Zionist revisionists, opposition party, informed the Zionist congress that, in accordance with its policy, it will not send representatives to the Jewish agency council. It will leave its seats at the disposal of the Zionist executive so that the strength of the Zionist representation on the council may not be diminished.

Col. Frederick H. Kisch and Dr. David Yellin, former vice mayor of Jerusalem, left for London by airplane to present to the British colonial office the views of the Zionist Congress embodied in the statement adopted Friday afternoon concerning the walling wall controversy.

FINLAND'S PROPOSAL RECEIVED BY LEAGUE

Revised Suggestion to Make World Court Appellate Tribunal Arrives.

PACTS ARE CONCERNED

Geneva, Aug. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The League of Nations yesterday received the official text of Finland's revised proposal to confer upon the World Court the status of a supreme appellate tribunal over existing and future conciliation and arbitration pacts between nations. The proposal is understood to have been transmitted to the league with the approval of international juridicial experts.

It cites as a precedent the principle enunciated in the Anglo-American arbitration treaty signed January 11, 1897. Although that convention was never ratified, it provided appellate machinery for dealing with the findings of any arbitration committee which might have proved unfair. Article V of the aforementioned treaty, according to the Finnish explanatory note received by the league secretariat and to be distributed to delegations coming to the September assembly of the league, specified:

"If an award is not unanimous, either of the contracting parties may, within six months from the date of the award, demand a review thereof. In such case, the matter in controversy shall be submitted to an arbitral tribunal consisting of five jurists, none of whom shall have been a member of the tribunal whose award is to be reviewed."

Would Apply Internationally.

The crux of Finland's proposal is that the jurisdiction of the world court shall be made applicable to international arbitration and conciliation proceedings in the same manner in which the Supreme Court functions as the ultimate appellate tribunal in national affairs.

Finland's communication, which definitely places its proposal on the agenda of the September assembly, concludes:

"To confer upon The Hague Court functions conforming to the principles indicated would be entirely in harmony with the character of the court. The obligation to submit a difference to arbitration is always, in the final analysis, based upon treaties; also the question of whether the tribunal has exceeded its powers or has found itself incompetent depends upon the interpretation of the treaty which, in turn, is a point of international law.

Special Protocol Suggested.

"The purely judicial function of an appellate body would be then entirely compatible with the essential attributes of the permanent court. An engagement to recognize the permanent court as an appellate body for revision of the awards of arbitral tribunals instituted by respective states could be taken through the signing of a special protocol.

"The optional clause therein contained would carry with it recognition of the aforementioned competence of the court either solely in respect of conventions of arbitration to be concluded in the future or in respect of treaties already concluded, unless expressly stipulated otherwise."

Examination Is Invited.

The official text of the resolution follows:

"The assembly, desirous of developing and reinforcing the existing system of pacific regulation of international disagreements, recognizing the particular authority of the decrees of the permanent court of international justice, invites the council to examine the question if and in what measure it would be possible to confer upon The Hague court the quality of instance de revision (tribunal for revision) of awards by arbitral tribunals instituted by the various states and to present its findings before the assembly at a future date."

In juridical circles and among officials here interested in consolidating the machinery for the outlawry of war and Finnish proposal is regarded as one of the most advanced thus far brought forward at Geneva.

BANQUET IS PLANNED FOR FRUIT GROWERS

Albemarle County Prepares to Entertain Men From New York.

SENATORS WILL SPEAK

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 4.—The entertainment program for 300 members of the New York fruit growers who will visit Albemarle County August 9 is to be featured by a banquet in the dining room of the First Methodist Church that evening.

Senators Tom Connally, of Texas, and David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, who will speak at the Institute of Public Affairs at the university that night, have been invited to attend and to talk briefly upon "Farm Relief" and "The Tariff As It Affects the Farmer." Purcell McCue, of Greenwood, widely known orchardist, will act as toastmaster. Music will be furnished by the 40-piece Municipal Band, of this city. County fruit growers have also been invited.

Representing the visitors, Dr. A. J. Heinicke, head of the pomology department, New York State College of Agriculture; Dr. P. J. Parrott, entomologist, New York State experiment station, and M. C. Burritt, of Hilton, N. Y., chairman of the tour committee, will speak in summary of their trip.

Mr. McCue will welcome the visitors, and E. M. Wayland will represent the local growers with a talk on "The Grading and Branding Law of Virginia." Dan B. Owen, Doylesville orchardist, will feature the entertainment program with folk and negro songs. Other entertainment features are being prepared under the direction of Watson Sadler, of this city.

The visitors come here after a motor trip through Pennsylvania and West Virginia. They will be met at the crest of Afton Mountain by State and city highway patrolmen and by the reception committee of the local Chamber of Commerce. After lunch at Blue Ridge Terrace, the party will enter the native home of the Albemarle Pippin and will inspect the orchards of T. E. Wiley, Ray Warrick and John O'Neill, where they will see peach packing at its height, and will hear discussions on the Oriental peach moth, which is reaping its toll this year.

Upon arrival here the visitors will establish headquarters at the Monticello Hotel. From there they will be directed to the various hotels and lodging houses.

Marine Reserve Unit Of Capital Is in Lead

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., Aug. 4.—The 401st Company of the Marine Corps Reserve, which represents Washington in the training camp at the big Marine base here, will bring home two first-place honors when it returns to the District next week. Among the eight companies, from as many cities, which are undergoing instruction, the 401st so far stands first in pistol marksmanship, with every possibility of remaining in the lead until the end. The company, most of whose men are members of the Metropolitan Police Force, is also rated first in the size and muscular development of its personnel. The company was recently organized by Capt. Harvey L. Miller, of the Marine Corps Reserve.

In addition to their work on the range, the men are taking an intensive course in close-order drill, infantry tactics, automatic weapons, the 37-millimeter gun and grenades. The course also includes physical training and hygiene.

Free Air Ride For Merchants.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

RICHMOND, VA., Aug. 4.—Hard-shelled Virginia Democracy thinks mighty well of Herbert Hoover as President, apparently, but it is hoping the wicked Republican party will stump its toe. This attitude is aptly illustrated by John Stewart Bryan, uncompromising Democrat and editor of the Richmond News Leader. Mr. Bryan told the writer he hoped the Republican party would be split next time like it was in 1912, with the Progressives bolting on the tariff issue. This, he said, was the outstanding hope for Democracy.

"Who will be your Woodrow Wilson this time? Is he in sight?" I asked.

"Well, there is Owen D. Young," said Mr. Bryan.

"Don't any of your Virginia people like high tariff?" I asked. "Down in Norfolk I found an enthusiastic demand for high duties on peanuts, and also protection for the new cement mill there."

"Why, they even want duties on barrel staves," said Mr. Bryan, contemptuously, and then, with considerable sadness: "Everybody seems to want to make all the money they can get."

Whereupon he rushed back in his office to dash off another bitter masterpiece assailing the Hawley bill.

* * * *

MR. BRYAN may go a little further than some others, in Virginia, but he has plenty of company. Down here the doctrine of free trade is not very far behind religion. To make money by a protected industry, as the folks do up in Pennsylvania or in Ohio, may be all right for some outsiders, but it is a distinct surrender of personal integrity for Virginians. Most Democrats around Richmond are disgusted with the Norfolk section, which not only elected a Republican member of the House last November, but is demanding tariff duties regardless of political lines.

Richmond is simply flabbergasted that a daughter of the almost sainted William Jennings Bryan should have voted for the Hawley bill in the House.

The fact that her district and State are eager for high duties on early fruits and vegetables coming from Cuba and Mexico is no excuse in the eyes of the Richmond Democrats.

Norfolk Democrats view the situation just a little differently. A flood of foreign peanuts played hob with the prosperity of the surrounding country. So when President Coolidge promised the new Republican congressman-elect, Menaicus Lankford, that he would raise the duty on peanuts from 5 to 6 cents there was considerable local enthusiasm. And when Lankford, with others, had the House raise that duty to 7 cents he became almost a popular hero.

Also Norfolk for years has been a disappointed town. With a wonderful harbor, radiating railroad lines and other natural advantages, the folks there have always counted on eventually rivaling New York, but somehow the growth has been rather slow. Just two new industries have come to Norfolk since the war. One of these was a Ford assembly plant and the other a cement plant. This latter is operating at two-thirds capacity, while the City of Richmond and the State of North Carolina are buying foreign cement!

* * * *

EVEN Norfolk has not gone as far along this route of "intelligent selfishness," as the protectionists call it, as has Florida. In the House the Floridans were willing to vote for duties to help other sections in order to get votes to protect them. In short, they were willing to logroll. Norfolk has not gone that far.

Richmond stands with Senator Carter Glass, one of the best possible illustrations of local sentiment that free trade and personal integrity are almost synonymous. Senator Glass has long been a stockholder in the Glamorgan Pipe & Foundry Co., which manufacturers cast iron pipe and other things at Lynchburg. Bankers here tell me he has just recently acquired control of this company, which is a strong one, although not making much, if any, profit at the moment. Up in Washington there is a strong fight to put a tariff on cast iron pipe. Senator Glass is strongly opposed to it. He has not attempted to capitalize this apparent sacrifice of personal interest to principle. Far from it. As a matter of fact this is probably the first time Mr. Glass' interest in a cast iron pipe plant has been printed. But there you have a very interesting viewpoint, to say the least.

Senator Kendrick, of Wyoming, who votes for all the tariff schedules so other senators will be sure to vote to protect Wyoming products, probably could not understand it. Senator Glass probably puzzles considerable over how Senator Kendrick justifies himself.

Grover Cleveland once said the tariff was a local issue. In Richmond it is not regarded by old line Democrats as anything short of a test of integrity.

VIRGINIA PRIMARY WILL SEE CAMPAIGN START, NOT END

they had long been looking for. There was something of this feeling in the viciousness of the attacks delivered by Senator Glass and Gov. Byrd against the bishop last fall.

The bishop had long been a pain in the belligerant senator's neck, and he never gave Gov. Byrd any appetite, to say the least.

There is a serious question now as to whether the viciousness of the Glass-Byrd attacks was not more motivated by this old dislike of Cannon than by sound political judgment. And it is on the viciousness that the bishop is now building his campaign.

"They called us bigots and ignoramuses, didn't they?" Cannon's lieutenants are already saying as they back their auditors into the corner at the country stores, and Cannon is to say the same thing when he gets under way after Tuesday.

The attacks of Byrd and Glass upon the bishop have been likened to the heavy loser in a poker game. He finally turned in despair to an onlooker and whispered, "I haven't enough money to pay off, what would you do?"

"I think," the onlooker whispered back, "I'd turn over the table and break the game up in a fight."

There is the widely prevalent belief that Byrd and Glass, harassed so often by the bishop, decided to end the game up in an all-round fight. And the second round of that fight will begin after Tuesday.

It is up to Cannon to show the Democratic party that he is bigger than it is or that it at least can do nothing without him. If he fails, it is his political end. And with a man having his back to the wall like this, he may be expected to put up a fight.

Already whispering campaigns are sweeping the State. They are expected to grow in intensity when the general campaign gets under way.

The States which have enjoyed the two-party system for years will undoubtedly look upon Virginia's debut in the big leagues as a sign of progress. The regular Democrats in the State can see it as nothing but the work of the devil himself.

Democrats Feel Handicapped.

The Democrats feel that they are handicapped because the change has come so suddenly that the people have not been educated up to the two-party system, or rather the way to do under it.

Their great worry is that those who vote for the loser in Tuesday's primary will not come to rescue of the party nominee next November. Heretofore everybody has been democratic, so to speak, and they fought themselves on the personalities and individual issues of the candidates in the primary. The primary was the end. It did not determine party issues. It simply determined the issues of the individual candidates.

Should Mapp lose Tuesday the question is whether those who supported him will not accept their defeat as final and have no further interest in the campaign. Additional weight is given to this possibility by the fact that Mapp and the Republican-Cannonite candidate, William Mosely Brown, are politically so much alike. It is decidedly problematical as to whether the party consciousness of Mapp's supporters is so developed that they would turn to and be just as enthusiastic for Pollard as they had been for Mapp, especially when Mapp's followers, to a great extent, are of the same peculiar kind as Cannon's.

System Is New.

There seems to be a paradox in this statement in a State where Democracy has always been supreme. But its reasonableness lies in this very supremacy. The electorate has been taught to accept the primary as final. There has not been the thought of a two-party fight to come afterward.

Of course, in the present case, the issue will be Cannonism versus Democracy rather than the Republicans versus the Democrats, and it may be that some of Mapp's Methodist followers will feel so bitter against Cannon's knifing of a fellow Methodist in favor of a Presbyterian, as they may see it, that they will be able to work up considerable vigor against the bishop's candidate. Mapp is a Methodist, of the same church that supports Cannon's activities. Brown is a Presbyterian.

The Protestant denominations are said to be working very well together in this State at present, but once the churches get into politics there is no reason why they should sooner or later not get to fighting among themselves.

This is all on the assumption, of course, that Pollard will win Tuesday. Should Mapp win the Democrats will have a much easier time defeating Cannon.

The Mapp followers will feel doubly aggrieved if Tuesday's outcome should turn on the Ninth District, as it may very well do. It is the control of this district by the Byrd organization, in fact, that makes Pollard's supporters so confident of success.

Trading Seen in Ninth.

Politics has been gotten down to a fine art in the ninth. It is because the Republican and Democratic parties are so evenly matched. Everybody is on his toes all the time. And although a substantial citizenry lives in that district, necessity has developed politics to such a state that there is frequent trading between the two parties.

If the ninth in this instance should be responsible for Pollard's victory, there will immediately be the charge over the rest of the State that Republicans entered the primary in sufficient numbers to bring it about. This will have its effect on the Mapp supporters, notwithstanding the fact that Ninth District Republicans may enter the primary with the sincere intention of voting again for Pollard next fall to beat Cannon.

Over the rest of the State, generally, it is not believed that voters having little preference between Mapp and Brown will enter the primary, and then bolt the party in the event Mapp loses, as the Rev. David Hepburn suggested. But it may be expecting too much of them to come out in November and vote for Pollard.

ARLINGTON VOTERS APPEAR APATHETIC

Candidates for House Post Placards on Poles in Nearby County.

AUXILIARY NAMES HEADS

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With apparent lack of interest in the choice of a Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates from Arlington County, there appeared on telephone and telegraph poles throughout the county yesterday along the highways and byways as an eleventh hour appeal the pictures of Hugh Reid, present incumbent, and his opponent, Robert H. Forman, who seek the nomination at the hands of the Democratic voters of the county at the primary to be held tomorrow.

Political leaders who have gone through many campaigns were not appearing so sure of Reid's election tomorrow, his opponent, Robert H. Forman, gaining, it being claimed.

Indications are that one of the lightest votes will be cast tomorrow, with the result close.

Mrs. R. E. Kendrick has been re-elected president of the auxiliary to the Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department. Other officers are Mrs. C. A. Whalen, sr., first vice president; Mrs. R. L. Harmon, second vice president; Miss Pauline Royston, recording secretary; Mrs. Joseph Loveday, treasurer, and Mrs. George Clark, guard.

The president has announced the following committee appointments: Finance, Mrs. E. M. Ward, chairman, and Mrs. Luther Elliott and Mrs. Charles Whalen, sr.; entertainment, Mrs. Irene Clark, chairman, and Miss Catherine Schofield, Miss Alice Loveday, Miss Margaret Kimball, Miss Pauline Royston and Miss Catherine Hesson; refreshments, Mrs. Warren Fisher, chairman, and Mrs. Anna Tasker, Mrs. R. L. Harmon, Mrs. J. R. Royston, Miss Margaret Kimball and Mrs. C. A. Whalen.

The seventy-fourth annual meeting of the Potomac Baptist Association will meet Wednesday and Thursday of this week at Marshall.

The meeting will open with devotional services Wednesday morning, conducted by the Rev. H. B. Jennings, the annual sermon following at 11:15 o'clock, by the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge. The afternoon session will open at 1:30, with devotional exercises by the Rev. V. H. Hobbs. Concluding the reading of reports from the several committees, an address will be delivered by the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell on Sunday school work. At the evening service the Rev. U. S. Knox will speak on young people's work.

On Thursday addresses will be delivered by the Rev. Scott Y. Craig, on "The Divine Progress," and the Rev. Charles T. Taylor, who will speak on "The Program, Possibilities and Prospects of Southern Baptists."

The annual convention of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association will convene Tuesday, August 13, at Greenway Downs, just beyond Falls Church on the Lee highway.

Among the speakers at the evening session will be Representative R. Walton Moore, State Senator Frank L. Ball, Delegate Hugh Reid and Judge Howard W. Smith, of the Arlington and Fairfax Counties Circuit Court. The address of welcome will be by the Mayor of Falls Church, John F. Bethune.

The Ashton Height's Woman's Club will hold an all-day picnic Wednesday at Miller's Cabin, Rock Creek Park, as a part of the semimonthly meeting. Buses will leave from the clubhouse Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Reports of the committee in charge of the annual carnival of the Arlington County Social Club show on incomplete returns the club will receive more than $5,000. The money will go to the clubhouse building fund.

With work being rapidly completed on Mount Vernon avenue, indications are that the section now closed between Columbia pike and the Little Tea House will be opened by the end of this week. All other sections of the road are now open to traffic.

Mrs. Viola E. Dale, State councilor of the Daughters of America, will pay her annual visit to Ballston Council, No. 20, at its meeting tomorrow night in the Ballston firemen's hall.

Mrs. Jesse Johncox has been elected recording secretary to fill the vacancy caused by resignation of Mrs. Leona Fritter.

There will be a meeting of the community club of the First Presbyterian Church of Ballston Wednesday night in the Sunday school rooms. Mrs. W. E. Croson and Mrs. Florence Benton will be hostesses.

The auxiliary to the Arlington-Fairfax Counties Firemen's Relief Association will meet tonight in the Rogers Building at Ballston.

ANTI-SMITH VOTERS WARNED IN VIRGINIA

Chairman of Recalcitrants Says Primary Tomorrow Not for Them.

121 CANDIDATES IN FIELD

Voters of Virginia intent on defeating Democratic party candidates are warned by Frank Lyon, of McLean, Va., chairman of the anti-Smith organization in that State, not to participate in the Democratic primary to be held tomorrow.

The statement, made public yesterday by Mr. Lyon, follows:

"No independent anti-Smith Democrat or any one else interested in the defeat of the Virginia Democratic machine should vote in the primary being held Tuesday, August 6. Friends of machine candidates are quietly urging anti-Smith Democrats to enter the primary and then vote against the nominee in November. This is being done by those opposed to the anti-Smith organization and does not represent its views."

These precautionary declarations came as Virginia Democrats prepared to go to the polls to register their choice for a lengthy list of party candidates, principal among whom are the three gubernatorial entrants, including G. Walter Mapp, Roswell Page and John Garland Pollard. Democrats of 25 of Virginia's 82 legislative districts will ballot for 121 candidates to nominate 79 for seats in the House of Delegates. No primary is necessary in 38 districts, inasmuch as the candidates who filed notice are nominees of the party for lack of opposition, while 19 of the legislative districts will choose nominees at subsequent conventions.

The anti-Smith forces at their convention in Roanoke on June 18 by acclamation nominated as their gubernatorial candidate Dr. William Moseley Brown, professor of psychology at Washington and Lee University.

Capt. C. C. Berkeley, of Newport News, unanimously was named the anti-Smith nominee for attorney general. Upon motion of Mr. Lyon at the convention the group voted that the selection of a candidate for lieutenant governor be left in the hands of the executive committee.

It was also at this gathering that resolutions demanding the resignation of John J. Raskob as chairman of the Democratic national committee were adopted unanimously.

Campaign Is Tame In Prince William

Little Interest Is Taken in Governor's Race While Delegate Is Unopposed.

Manassas, Va., Aug. 4.—When Prince William County sends its Democratic voters to the polls Tuesday to take part in the State primary election, one of the tamest political campaigns ever waged in this section will come o an end.

There is no contest for the seat in the house of delegates now held by D. M. Chichester, to represents Prince William and Stafford counties, and he has already been certified by the election officials. Not one of the candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination has made a speech at a political meeting within the borders of this county, although John Garland Pollard paid a visit to Manassas, Nokesville, Haymarket and other towns last month and talked with many citizens.

Despite the claims of the Mapp followers that he will carry the Eighth Congressional District the Pollard followers here are predicting a handsome margin Tuesday in this county.

VIRGINIA UNCERTAIN ON EVE OF PRIMARY

Tuesday's Vote to Be Taken as Some Indication of Democratic Strength.

HARMONY IS PUT FIRST

Richmond, Va., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Uncertainty characterized all political forecasts in Virginia tonight, except in the camps of the candidates themselves, while voters of all parties looked to Tuesday's Democratic primary for some indication of Democratic strength as well as to a choice among the three candidates for the nomination for governor.

Admittedly Democrats have sought to avoid any serious division of sentiment in the primary campaign in order to solidify Democratic voters behind the party nominee in the general election contest with the coalition of Republicans and anti-Smith Democrats.

The candidates themselves have placed party harmony above everything in campaign speeches although clear cut lines have been drawn on a few State issues.

Short Ballot Attacked.

The "short ballot" amendments sponsored by the Byrd administration and adopted last June, have afforded the candidates their chief point of difference. John Garland Pollard, regarded as the administration candidate, has defended the amendments and declared the "short ballot" not an issue in the campaign, while G. Walter Mapp, a former senator, has made an attack on the amendments as a dangerous centralization of power the central theme in his campaign. Roswell Page, while announcing opposition to the short ballot, has not made his appeal on this basis.

The 'short ballot" provides for the appointment by the governor of three former elective officers—treasurer, superintendent of education and commissioner of agriculture—until 1932, when the legislature is to decide how the officials are to be named.

Vote Figures Awaited.

A total vote in the primary equal to the vote in the Bryd-Mapp campaign in 1925, when 175,000 ballots were cast, would be regarded as heralding the return to the party of a large number of Democrats who were allied with the anti-Smith movement last fall. Despite a record-breaking total vote in the 1928 presidential campaign, Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic nominee, received only 141,000 votes, or approximately the same as the vote given John W. Davis four years before. Hoover received 165,000 votes, thus throwing the State into Republican ranks for the first time in four decades.

Democrats insist, however, that a relatively small vote in the primary would not indicate Democratic weakness, since a feeling of apathy has been noticeable in the primary.

Sofa Jefferson Owned Given Farmington Club

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Amelia Von Mayhoff, of New York City, has presented to the Farmington Club, the city's social center, a sofa which was once owned by Thomas Jefferson, at Monticello.

The gift is in memory of Mrs. Von Mayhoff's brother, Jefferson M. Levy, one time owner of the Jefferson home, now a national shrine.

argue that while under the various debt settlements England and the United States would get payments from France and Italy even if German reparations should fail, France herself can only look to Germany for payments.

France would like to substitute a new committee of control in the Rhineland, which would be almost as epurgnant to Germany as the present military occupation. Another which will need to be discussed by the onference is the proposed organization of an international bank to handle the reparation settlements.

The British hancellor also is likely to appeal for reconsideration of the whole question of deliveries in kind.

The German delegation of 70 arrived and spread into quarters in both the Hague and Scheveningen. Rooms are now at a premium and other delegations are finding it difficult to obtain central quarters for

THE MUNICIPAL CENTER.

Purchase of the first parcel of land for the new municipal center marks a turning point in local affairs. The site is not large, having a frontage of but 25 feet on Pennsylvania avenue, but its purchase signalizes the tangible beginning of work upon a project that has been advocated for years. Negotiations have been begun for the purchase of another larger parcel located within the area. Officials of the District government have embarked upon a program of purchasing such land as may be obtained at reasonable prices, leaving for a later date such condemnation proceedings as may be advisable. As parcels of sufficient size are secured it is planned to proceed with the construction of the units that will go to make up the center; and, in the meantime, it is hoped to house some of the activities of the local government in the newly acquired structures.

Washington is gratified by the prospect that work upon the center will be no longer delayed. The District Building is badly overcrowded. Several of the departments are working in quarters so cramped that their efficiency has been impaired, and practically every department has requested larger quarters. In addition, the Federal building program has necessitated the dispossession of several activities of local government, notably the House of Detention, and these activities are at present housed in makeshift, unsatisfactory quarters. Taxpayers are being charged for inefficiency made inevitable by overcrowding. The public business will suffer until such time as adequate quarters are found for all departments of the local government.

There is in hand an appropriation of $3,000,000 for the municipal center, and a request for an additional $4,000,000 is now to be made. While local officials are not to be criticized for planning to postpone condemnation of otherwise unobtainable parcels until the last, it would seem that greater progress might be made if the land were obtained on the basis of need rather than availability. An outstanding need, for example, is a new court structure. It already has been decided where that building will be situated. Why should not the necessary land be obtained forthwith, by purchase, if possible, or by condemnation, if necessary, so that work upon the structure may be got under way?

Probably it will be found that the buildings acquired by purchase will be ill-suited for use by any of the overcrowded departments of the local government. The buildings on the larger site under negotiation will at best provide makeshift homes for crowded departments. It would be the part of economy to acquire the various parcels as they can be used, and to get actual construction on some of the units under way as soon as possible.

MOTORING BECOMES SAFER.

The Department of Commerce recently published figures showing that motor fatalities in the large cities are rapidly increasing. A few of the cities reported reductions, but the general trend was upward. It is estimated that for the year ended July 13 the average increase in 78 large cities with a total population of 33,000,000 was 10 per cent. The accident rate is usually higher in urban areas, but the rate of increase is taken to indicate a general gain in motor fatalities.

The automobile accident rate is generally misunderstood, and no effort seems to be made to give the public the correct interpretation. It is usually inferred that the increasing number of accidents means that the motor car is becoming more dangerous. Any examination of the facts will show that such an inference is not well founded. It is possible to determine the approximate risk per mile traveled on the highways, and these figures put automobile traffic in an entirely different light.

The number of automobiles in operation is growing much more rapidly than the accident rate. In 1917 there were 178 fatalities for every 100,000 cars registered. In 1927 there were but 97 fatalities per 100,000 cars registered. The improvement is still more pronounced when the greater total mileage is considered.

Figures on consumption of gasoline can be obtained from the United States Bureau of Mines. It is estimated that 85 to 90 per cent of all gasoline sold is consumed in automobiles at the rate of about 15 miles per gallon. On this basis it can be shown that in 1918 automobiles traveled approximately 39,879,000,000 miles. One person was killed for every 3,779,000 miles traveled. The mileage more than doubled during the following five years. In traveling nearly 84,000,000,000 miles, a total of 18,211 persons lost their lives in 1923. This is a rate of one fatality for every 4,608,000 miles. During the last five years still more remarkable progress has been made. The latest estimate available for 1928 is that motors traveled 189,000,000,000 miles, with approximately 29,000 fatalities. This is a rate of one fatality for every 6,511,000 miles.

In spite of the present congestion of streets and highways and the multiplication of traffic hazards, automobiles are driven almost twice as far per fatality today as they were ten years ago. The death rate can hardly be considered high in relation to mileage covered, There is much room for improvement, but in the effort to cut down the number of accidents there is no reason for ignoring the fact that the individual automobile is safer at present than ever before.

GRAF ZEPPELIN ARRIVES.

The flight of the Graf Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst was in marked contrast to the flight attempted earlier in the summer. On the latter trip she had little more than reached the open sea when trouble developed in her motors and her commander, Dr. Eckener, was forced to turn her about and beat his way back against adverse winds to Friedrichshafen. Last Wednesday night, however, Dr. Eckener ordered the Graf out of her hangar despite the fact that the best of weather was not forecast and yesterday, after an uneventful flight of upward of 6,000 miles he landed her safely at Lakehurst. The flight completed yesterday was, in its essential elements, similar to an ordinary, routine crossing of the Atlantic by surface vessel.

Just what the future of the dirigible may be, experts are not willing to say. The lighter-than-air craft enthusiasts are loud in their praise of the potentialities and capabilities of the dirigible, and the heavier-than-air craft supporters insist that the dirigible is bunglesome, uneconomic and generally impracticable. Those who have no prejudice, however, are waiting to be shown. They realize that the dirigible has certain points of superiority and that the airplane has others and they are inclined to believe that there will be a place in future air merchant marines for craft of both types. Of recent years, of course, the airplane has come in for major attention. The dirigible is a German development, invented by a German and experimented with almost exclusively by Germans until the war. Following the war Germany was unable, economically and by virtue of the terms of the peace treaty to continue building dirigibles and it is only recently that work with lighter-than-air craft has been resumed.

Dr. Eckener has succeeded Count Zeppelin, not only as chief of the Zeppelin works, but also as the foremost lighter-than-air craft authority. It is his lot to prove to the world the worth of the Zeppelin. That the flight the Graf Zeppelin completed yesterday constituted a dramatic demonstration of the worth of the ship goes without saying. If the round-the-world flight, next on schedule, is completed as successfully and as easily, Dr. Eckener with his Graf Zeppelin will have convinced many that the dirigible is not the ungainly, impracticable thing it is so frequently painted.

AIR MAIL DEVELOPMENT.

Airplanes now fly 80,000 miles daily, carrying mail, passengers and express between 216 cities. Mail planes alone fly 50,000 miles every day across 41 States and into Canada, Mexico and Central America. This announcement by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce has a close relationship to the statement by Postmaster General Brown that the air mail may soon be restored to Government operation. Government contracts for handling mail have been important factors in developing the existing 30,000 miles of airways in this country. But now they are established the handling of mail may become an auxiliary activity.

The Government is losing large sums of money in transportation of air mail. Postmaster General Brown has notified air mail contractors that some change in the present arrangement will be necessary to cut down the postoffice deficit. The plan he now suggests is similar to that in operation for railway mail. The Government pays the railroads on the basis of space used. Whether or not air mail has developed to an extent where this system would be practical is problematical, but a similar arrangement will no doubt be adopted within a few years.

Another suggestion which appears on its face to be out of harmony with the administration's efforts to reduce the postal deficit is that the postage rate for air mail be reduced to 2 cents. The reduction from 10 to 5 cents brought with it an enormous increase in the amount of air mail carried, and a further reduction might do likewise. Postal authorities have intimated that the time is not far distant when practically all first-class mail will be transported by air. If further reduction of the postage rate would substantially increase patronage, it might be found practical to inaugurate the railway mail system on air transport lines in the near future without any loss of revenue.

UNCLE SAM, PILOT.

The performance of the steamship Bremen is a fine illustration of the adage that where there is a will there is a way.

When it is considered that as a result of the World War Germany was practically stripped of her sea-going tonnage, her present position in the maritime field is a wonderful accomplishment.

Still more wonderful is the story of Uncle Sam, pilot extraordinary. In the decade ending with 1914 he carried about 10 per cent of the total value of his foreign trade. In the decade just concluded he carried an average of 36 per cent, and this in face of the fact that the value of the trade increased over 700 per cent. In the decade ended with 1914 the average value of the trade was $300,000,000, while in the decade just concluded the average value was over $2,500,000,000.

What a stupendous business American water-borne foreign commerce has become is illustrated by the fact that during the fiscal year 1928, 5,100 vessels of 23,000,000 gross tons, flying the flags of 28 countries, participated in the trade during the year, transporting 1,750,000 passengers and 100,000,000 tons of cargo valued at nearly $8,000,000,000, the total passenger and freight revenues reaching $1,000,000,000.

The performance of Uncle Sam as a pilot for American shipping is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that in 1914 the American people were not interested in the maintenance of the merchant marine. The World War brought the realization of the fact that a country with a coast line, particularly one extending over 7,000 miles, with the finest natural harbors in the world, must have ships. World commerce is dominated by ships, for there is no prospect that tonnage will be moved otherwise than in ships.

Starting practically from zero as a shipowner, the United States, after the war, found itself involved in the shipping business to the extent of being the greatest owner of ships in the world. At one time it had under its jurisdiction in vessels contracted for, requisitioned, commandeered, seized, transferred, chartered and purchased, 4,500 ships of over 17,500,000 gross tons.

Uncle Sam, pilot, is to be congratulated on his achievements since he focused his mind on the need of an American merchant marine. When he announced that he would devote his war fleet to peace purposes he was greeted with derision and offered all kinds of advice, a common suggestion being that he had better sink his ships and save his money.

The task was at first glance seemingly impossible. The ships were built and acquired for emergency purposes and were ill-adapted for peace-time needs. Against the United States were the world's maritime powers, with the knowledge and mechanism of successful maritime service. In 1922 it was said that the world was over-tonnaged by 12,000,000 gross tons, but from that time to 1928 there were built 1,600 ships of 10,000,000 gross tons for ocean service, of which the United States built only 2½ per cent. These modern ships gave a decided advantage to America's competitors.

That Uncle Sam succeeded so well in the circumstances is evidence that American shipowners, and operators, exporters and importers have cooperated splendidly with the Government. The pilot has not yet completed his job, but he has built the ways and laid the keel for modern tonnage that will carry the greater portion of America's commerce in its own ships.

Another Hollywood actress marries a banker, but then it's quite according to the modern trend to link production and management.

A record number of marriage licenses were issued in Reno during the first half of the year. It will be news to many that Reno makes 'em as well as breaks 'em.

With 1,000,000 model A's produced since February, where is the man who hailed the abandonment of model T as a blessing to civilization?

It's about time for some dry to challenge President Hoover's suspension of the cruiser building program as a blow to prohibition.

A rattlesnake was discovered in President Hoover's fishing camp. Maybe it was a big navy man in disguise.

GOLF: A LARGER HOLE?

By GEOFFREY BRERETON,
In a Letter to the London Times.

The suggestion made by a correspondent in your columns to increase the size of the hole in golf tends, as all developments in golf of recent years, to magnify the advantage of length over accuracy.

On the average course there are usually about five holes which the medium hitter can not, but the "tiger" may, reach in 2. The "tiger's" second shot, being a full one, is rarely dead, and his shorter opponent may hope, by a superlative approach and one brave putt, to get his "birdie" 4 and a half. This represents perfection on his part; he could do no better. Should the long-hitter put his second shot by the pin, or hole out from a longer distance for 3, this also is perfection for him, and, his standard being higher than the other's, he deserves the hole. But if you enlarge the hole by 1 inch or 1½ inches, as suggested, you make it too easy for the long-hitter to hole out from 6 or 7 yards, without needing to be perfectly accurate either in his approach or his putt, and this means that ordinarily good play by him beats superlatively good play by the shorter man, who still can not hope for better than a 4. If you eliminate uncertainty on the greens you destroy the essence of golf; for the best and most sporting feature of the game is that a player who is outclassed on the tee may yet retrieve himself by skillful play near the hole.

It may be argued that the above is not a necessary consequence of enlarging the hole, but I would ask your correspondent to reflect how many 4 yard putts he would have missed given an extra half-inch on each side of the hole, and—what is equally important—an extra inch at the back of it to drop into. Is it reasonable that an approach to within 4 yards of the hole should be almost as dead as one which stops within 4 feet? How many hundreds of those putts which now slide past the edge of the hole would, in the new order of things, drop in, and bring an undeserved sense of satisfaction—undeserved because they were not struck with absolute accuracy?

The real question which your correspondent raises is whether putting is to be considered as a definite department of the game or as an irksome necessity. I believe that the greate majority of golfers, if they consider the matter dispassionately, will decide that it is the former. The disgust occasioned by missed putts is great, but it is easily counterbalanced by the pleasure of hearing a true putt drop in the hole, and if we enlarge the hole this pleasure would grow hollow, since it could be achieved by slovenly methods.

A half-inch increase in diameter would be a niggardly compromise that would satisfy none. If any change were made, it must be a definite one of at least an inch. This, as I have tried to show, would be a heavy handicap to the medium hitter, who, on his day, surely deserves an occasional victory, even in championships.

PRESS COMMENT.

Farm Reliever.

Cincinnati Enquirer: The farm relief officials might consider the Sunday motorist who climbs a fence and makes off with a peck or so of apples.

What Ink?

Philadelphia Inquirer: Our idea of a good graft is the concession to retrieve the ink from postoffice blotters.

And No Neck.

Louisville Courier-Journal: This is the time of year when mother wishes the Sunday dinner chicken had four legs and breasts front and back.

East of Suez.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: "Ship me somewhere east of Suez," Mr. Kipling might have cracked, "where their ain't no Ten Commandments and there ain't no Kellogg pact.

Pity the Company.

Bushville Republican: Misery loves company, so the old saying says, but it is terribly hard on the company.

False Friends.

Topeka Capital: According to Dr. Morris Fishbein, "a man's best friends are his hair and teeth." And, sad to relate, even they are sometimes false.

Look At Marion.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Mme. Schumann-Heink says there is no future for opera singers in the United States. Well, Marion Talley has just sold her wheat crop at a premium.

Taking Advantage.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: They have just completed a golf course in Maine, with the clubhouse in Canadian territory. Maine hasn't many natural advantages, but the few she has she utilizes to the full.

Sounds Fishy.

Portland Oregonian: If history repeats itself, the Columbia river will be clogged with salmon before the end of July. Ship captains have reported sailing through immense schools of salmon at sea, the fish headed north. The fish were so near the surface that their backs were at times out of water. A similar situation was reported in 1903, when vessels arriving at Astoria told of passing through schools of fish; then, July 28, the fish reached the mouth of the river and swarmed in like an invading army. The fishermen had all they could take care of and the salmon packers were swamped to such an extent that they sold carloads of raw fish at 3 cents a pound to get rid of them.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

PLEA.

I ask but this, the right to be
Only a little proud of me;
The right to say, when day is done,
That naught unfairly have I won.
And, big or small, the thing I gain
To bring it home without a stain.

I ask but this, that all I do
Shall open be for men to view;
That when I leave the market place
I can with pride my steps retrace,
Nor be ashamed, nor be afraid
Of any bargain I have made.

Grant me the right the world to walk
Unhampered by the gossip's talk;
To gain or lose, to win or fail,
Yet leave no shame along my trail;
To sit with those I love and be
Deserving of their faith in me.

I do not ask for silken ease
And all that goes with victories.
I ask the common sense to spurn
The prize I can not truly earn,
And day by day, the right to be Always a little proud of me.

The Free Horse Ridden Too Hard Must Despise the Rider.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A YOUNG man who was respected by the community went away without the formality of farewells and left his wife to fend for herself.

Without waiting to hear his side of the story or look for an explanation, the community reversed its opinion and expressed its frank contempt.

That is the usual public reaction in America, for we are a people ruled by sentiment rather than reason and our training in the niceties of chivalry prompts us to blame the man and excuse the woman.

But a violent effect indicates a violent cause, and a man who is decent and "square" does not become a violator of contracts and a shirker of duty without reason.

In any community in America the student of our times will find numerous young husbands who have sufficient reason to resent the bonds that hold them.

Their wives are useless clothes racks—lazy, spoiled and selfish burdens who take all they can get and give nothing in return.

They have no children; they have little work to do; they have no sense of obligation or duty.

They get dinner with a can opener, or slice a few olives and spread a little mayonnaise, or go to a restaurant—not because they can not learn to cook, but because they are too indolent to do any work that can be avoided.

By no stretch of the imagination can they be called a help to their husbands. They are an expense and a handicap—nothing more.

And the unfortunate man tied to a woman of that kind must at times say to himself: "What do I get out of it? What return does she make for the money she costs me? I was far better off without her."

He is speaking the literal and exact truth. He is working to support a shallow and selfish woman who hasn't character enough to realize that she is in honor bound to make a fair return for all he gives her.

Of course he is bitter. Doubtless he makes complaint. And doubtless she, being incapable of a fair or unselfish thought, resents his complaining and retaliates by making his home life a bedlam.

Why does he endure it? Because he has standards of chivalry. Life has cheated him; he is hooked. But a man's part is to endure and do his duty, hiding his hurts and his shame to protect the fair name of the woman.

Those who labor to preserve the institution of marriage should give us a new definition of chivalry and teach the doctrine of fair play.

It isn't a kindness to give an infant sufficient candy to make it sick.

If hard knocks are essential to the building of character, it is the business of chivalry to provide the hard knocks.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE BAREBACK GIRL.
(After Whittier.)

Blessings on thee, little Nan,
Bareback girl with spinal tan,
With thy jersey cut so low
Tending to expose thee so;
With thy red lip redder still (Not from strawberries on the hill);
With the sunshine on thy face—
(And most ev'ry other place)—
To thee, girl, I doff my hat—
Would that I could dress like that;
Princess thou art—only man
Has to be republican.
Let the million-dollared ride!
Bareback, there beside the tide,
Thou hast more than riches buy
In the reach of ear and eye;
Lolling where the breezes curl,
Blessings on thee, bareback girl!

Oh for girlhood's painless play
There amid the spume and spray,
Health that mocks the doctor's rules,
Knowledge never learned at schools,
Of the value by the sea
Of a personality;
Where the tabloid picture men
Hunt the bathing girls and when;
How the vertebrae are shown
Inch by inch and bone by bone;
When the Beauty Contests rage,
How to make the outside page;
How to strut in garments few
So the judge will notice you;
How to manage sex appeal,
What and what not to reveal;
Of the whoopee-maker's trail,
And the habits of the male;
How the lifeguard handsome, tall,
Teaches the Australian crawl,
(And that sometimes isn't all);
Where the smartest beaches are
Who can take you there by car,
Where the boys with yachts are found,
Where the thrills and "kicks" abound,
What to say and what to do
In the boy friend's red canoe,
Of the quiver in his tone
When he has you all alone!
When to stay and neck with him,
When 'tis best to jump and swim;
Though you learn [illegible] awhirl
Blessings on thee, bareback girl!

Cheerily then, nut-brown miss,
Live and laugh in summer's bliss
Though you may not ever be
Miss Bayonne or Miss Fort Lee
Ev'ry day shall lead thee through
One romance . . . and maybe two;
Every evening see thee park
With some full back in the dark;
All too soon these joys must fly
When you wed some simple guy,
Wash his dishes in some flat,
Do his darning and grow fat,
See thy [illegible]ood take the skids,
Have to raise a dozen kids,

Have to spend the summer hot
Doing things you'd rather not,
Have to sit and lose your shape
Knowing there is no escape,
Have to think of beaches gay
As in mem'ry far away,
Knowing you would be a fright
In a bathing costume tight,
Ah, that thou couldst know thy bliss
Ere it passes, bareback miss!

Wonder what the skipper of the Ile de France thinks about when his ship is passed by the Bremen?

Or a Restful Sunday Motor Trip.

W. O. Saunders, a North Carolina man, paraded about New York the other day in a pajama suit and attracted little attention. Probably most people thought it was just one of those Palm Beach suits after a ride in the subway.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Bobby Jones for Congress if He Can Make Good.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Bobby Jones is proposed for representative in Congress on the ground that he is the world's champion amateur golfist, and, therefore, of "unquestionable and great ability." Yes, as a golf player!

The American voters have come to a pretty pass if they must elect golfists, pugilists, baseball players and the relative of deceased members of Congress to Congress, if these persons possess little or no knowledge of government.

The writer is not directly or indirectly referring to any one of the present women congressmen, for they have proved themselves, both in their home States and in the House, capable representatives in the Congress.

W. E. RYAN.

Plea for Better Treatment of Hogs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is certainly time some one should plead the cause of the long-neglected hog. Even in these enlightened times some farmers do not realize that any place and any food are not entirely suitable for hogs. The scientific husbandman, on the other hand, is aware that there is profit in a sanitary environment for the hog as for all animals. Outdoor exercise is especially important for the young pig. Premises occupied by hogs should be thoroughly cleansed at regular intervals with slaked lime.

In transportation the hog is permitted to endure terrible suffering. During a six-month period in which records were kept at nine of the principal stockyards of the country 28,375 dead hogs were received and 38,708 in a more or less crippled condition. In getting them to the loading point the animals are frequently prodded, kicked and hurried. It is estimated that one hard kick against a hog causes a damage of $75. In shipping, hogs and cattle are often loaded in cars containing protuding nails, mud and rubbish, and no bedding.

The killing of hogs as ordinarily conducted is an appalling procedure. The animal is usually stabbed without stunning and allowed to bleed to death. Since suffering previous to death impairs the quality of meat, this is a serious mistake, aside from humane considerations. Insensibility can readily be produced by aiming a blow at the proper point on the creature's head. Meat packers are now experimenting with the use of electricity in stunning animals.

Modern notions of justice to the lower orders of life demand a different attitude as regards the treatment of the hog.

ICELAND'S GEYSERS.

Iceland is putting its geysers to work, writes the Reykjavik correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle. A common phenomenon here, despite the incongruity of their appearance in a land whose very name breathes of the cold, the many geysers and hot springs of the country have not been utilized to the full extent of their possibilities. Now their heat is being harnessed.

The largest and most famous geyser in the country bears simply the name Geyser. Occasionally this giant throws a stream of boiling water to a height of 35 to 50 feet. Fifty years ago these outbursts occurred once or twice daily. Now they are rare. But there are still plenty of natural hot springs to offer considerable opportunities for their development.

Several farms are heated almost entirely from hot water, and a schoolhouse is heated by the same method. Another is not only heated by natural hot springs but has a bathing pool filled from the same source. The water also has curative properties, and the children in this school are consequently among the healthiest in a population noted for its health.

A third school to be heated on the hot water plan is now to be built at Keykholt, one of the historic spots of Iceland, located in the southwestern part of the island. This place is mentioned in saga. The historian and poet, Snorre Sturlason, lived and was killed there in 1241. He was born in 1173 and is considered the first of ancient historians of Iceland.

CANADA'S GAME.

Lacrosse, Canada's national game, is up against tough opposition, but it is far from dead, says the Toronto Telegram. In the larger cities it is handicapped by lack of suitable playing fields, while the cost of equipment places it at a serious disadvantage. Given a vacant lot, a ball and a bat, a softball club can get into action on a few minutes notice. But lacrosse, with its costly pads and sticks, needs a born financier in charge before operations can start.

Moreover, lacrosse is a game that requires strenuous practice and lots of it. It must be played to the exclusion of rides in the family car and evenings at the movies.

These and other things have operated to keep the game under in the cities. Too many restrictive rules have hurt it in the country. But, like the Canadian thistle, it refuses to die. No sooner is it crushed in one place than it breaks out in another. Just at present there are sporadic outbursts all over the province that give promise of a good crop of players for the future. And, strange to relate, the colleges of the United States and England are the hotbeds of the game at the present time. And the funny part of it all is that, while the preparatory schools of Canada frown on lacrosse and encourage their pupils to specialize on cricket, the public schools of England are turning their attention more and more to the plebeian game of lacrosse.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF SOCIETY IN THE SUBURBS

Prince Visitor In Washington For Few Days

Princess Cantacuzene Is With Husband on Brief Trip.

PRINCE and Princess Michael Cantacuzene, whose fondness for Washington brings them to the Capital at all seasons, deserted the gayety of Manhattan last week long enough to pay a flying visit here. They arrived almost incognito, so to speak; enjoyed a leisurely few days in the company of old friends; accepted several informal invitations, and dashed back to New York and thence to Newport before many Washingtonians realized they had been here.

Since they first came to this country from Russia, the Cantacuzenes have been identified with Washington, where Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, Princess Cantacuzene's mother, takes an active interest in the doings of the older residential set. Her charming little mansion on Rhode Island avenue is the scene of many interesting parties during the glamorous winter months, an added literary flair being lent through the presence of foreign celebrities —novelists, essayists, poets—attracted by the talents of Princess Cantacuzene, a noted writer.

Both daughters of Prince and Princess Cantacuzene—Bertha and Ida—made their debut in Washington, and became extremely popular in what is called the "younger diplomatic" contingent. The Princesses Bertha and Ida represented the average American's idea of what Russian princesses should be. Actually, many Russian noblewomen—particularly from the south of Russia—are decided blondes, with fair hair and blue eyes. These young princesses, however, are of the brunette type of beauty—with dark complexions, almost black hair, and large brown eyes. They wore perpetually a naive air of astonishment and the most fascinating Paris gowns. Their success was enormous. Eventually—after several Washington seasons replete with parties, fetes champetres, sparkling witticisms a la Russe and hosts of admirers—both young girls married, to the great chagrin of several pining beaux-about-town.

From the brilliance of the czar's court to the terrors of red revolution the placidity of the Cantacuzene family had not been affected. They appeared to accept the astounding changes of fortune with Oriental fatalism. Following the splendor of St. Petersburg, Prince Cantacuzene was forced to escape from Russia, with his family upon the advent of the Bolsheviki. He fled at night, first killing his dogs and horses that they might not be tortured by the ignorant peasantry. With his wife and daughters he crossed to England and came to the United States.

British Ambassador's Son Is Summer Visitor.

The British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard have with them at Langley Park, Md., where they are passing the summer, their son, Mr. Henry Howard, who arrived in New York several days ago and came to Washington Saturday.

The Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Veverka will sail on Saturday for Europe. They have been passing the summer in a cottage at Arundel-on-the-Bay, Md.

The Minister of Nicaragua, Senor Don Juan B. Sacasa, will return today from New York, where he went to see Senora de Sacasa sail for Europe Saturday on the De Grasse. Senora de Sacasa will join their daughter, who has been at school in France for several months, and together they will return to Washington in the early fall.

Miss Emma Astrom, sister of the Minister of Finland, Mr. Leonard Astrom, will go to New York Sunday, for a week or ten days before sailing for Europe. Miss Astrom is president of the Finnish Nurses Association and came to this country to attend the sessions of the board of directors and general council of the International Nurses Council, held last month in Montreal. She will go to Denmark to represent Finland at the inter-Scandinavian congress on nursing, which will be held there later this month.

The Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. F. Trubee Davison, has joined Mrs. Davison at their home in Locust Valley, Long Island, for a short vacation.

The Commercial Counselor of the Swedish Legation and Mme. Weidel have motored to Rehoboth Beach, Del., to pass a short vacation.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Mr. David S. Ingalls, is in Cleveland, Ohio, where he joined Mrs. Ingalls for several days. They will return here tomorrow.

British Naval Attache And Wife Leave City.

The Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Ritchie have closed their home on Massachusetts avenue and have gone to York Harbor, Me., until September.

Mme. Lais, wife of the retiring Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, Capitano do Fregata Alberto Lais, who has been in Washington for a short visit, is now at Monterey, Pa., where she will stay for a while before returning to the Thousand Islands, where she is passing the summer.

Giusseppe Catalani, second counselor of the Italian embassy in Washington, and Signora Catalani are passengers on the Olympic, are expected tomorrow at the Ritz-Carlton in New York.

The Second Secretary of the Polish Legation, Mr. Jan Stalinski, will return today after passing the week-end in New York.

The Secretary of the Netherlands Legation, Baron C. G. W. H. van Boetzelaer van Oosterhout, left yesterday for York Harbor, Me., where he will join Baroness van Boetzelaer for a short visit.

Mme. Petera, wife of the Attache of the Netherlands Legation, who has been in Holland for two months, will return to Washington the middle of the month.

Mrs. William C. Carr has been visiting Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose at Sea Rocks, her summer home at Eastern Point, Gloucester, Mass. Mrs. Loose passed several months at her home in Kansas City this spring after she left Washington, before going to the North Shore.

Col. and Mrs. Henry C. Newcomer are at the Rockaway at East Gloucester, Mass., for the summer.

Wife of Roman Envoy

Harris & Ewing.

MRS. JOHN W. GARRETT, of Baltimore, wife of the newly designated Ambassador to Italy. Mrs. Garrett is the daughter of the late Mrs. Benjamin Warder, one of the Capital's most distinguished hostesses. The newly named Ambassador and his wife are at present traveling in Europe.

Mlle. Heilmann To Be Married In West Friday

Announcement of Plans for Wedding Close on Engagement.

Following closely on the announcement last Monday of the engagement of Mlle. Claire Heilmann, daughter of the French Consul General and Mme. Heilmann, of San Francisco, to Mr. St. George Burke, of Ballydugan House, Ireland, comes a letter from Mme. Heilmann announcing that the wedding will take place at noon on Friday at St. Matthew's Church, in San Mateo, Calif. The ceremony will be followed by a breakfast at the home of the bride's parents in Hillsborough and will be attended only by the immediate family and intimate friends.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, and the best man will be the Hon. Gerald Campbell, British Consul General in California.

A wedding of interest to many of the younger set of Washington took place Friday in New York when Miss Emma W. Churchill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wainwright Churchill, and Mr. Gerald Blake 2d were married in the Chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral. Only members of the immediate families attended the ceremony.

Mr. Blake is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John Bapst Blake, of Boston, and after passing several years at school in France and England returned to this country and came to Washington, where he was a student at the Foreign Service School. It was while here for two winters that Mr. Blake made many friends among Washingtonians and official groups.

The bride, who formerly lived in Philadelphia attended school in Switzerland.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Blake will make their home at 224 East Forty-eighth street, New York.

Dr. and Mrs. William C. Gwynn entertained at dinner Saturday evening at the Carlton Hotel, when their guests were Miss Caroline Roebling, Miss Jane Thorpe, Miss Louise Harrison Gwynn, their daughter; Mr. William Legge, Mr. William Grimshaw Ford and Mr. Ingram Mack.

The Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. H. H. Sims have left for a six weeks' visit to the former's home in Montreal, Canada.

Mrs. John Marshall Will Return to Capital.

Mrs. John Marshall, wife of the former Assistant Attorney General, will come to Washington this week for a few days from Rehoboth Beach, where they have a cottage for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall have made their home at the Wardman Park Hotel for a number of years, but will move into their new home, which is being built on Tracy place, on their return in the fall. Mrs. Marshall will be furniture hunting during her short stay in town this week.

Mrs. Falk Harmel and her son, Morton William Farmel, have returned from New York, where they spent several weeks with the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stein.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamlin have gone to Mattapoisett, Mass., to spend the remainder of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Meigs left the middle of the week for Woods Hole, Mass., where they will remain until fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rickey are at the Lake Placid Club in the Adirondacks for the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. A. A. Jones, widow of Senator Jones, left at the end of the week for an extended stay in Schenectady, N. Y.

Former Senator Thomas Leaves for Colorado.

Former Senator and Mrs. Charles S. Thomas have just closed their Washington home and returned to Colorado to make their residence.

Miss Carol Henderson, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Robert Henderson, will go to Philadelphia this week and from there will go to Bay Head, N. J., to pass about ten days.

Mrs. Mary Cowan has returned to her apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street after spending several months in Europe.

Mrs. Margaret Pauls and her two small children are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Walson at their summer home on South River near Annapolis.

Mr. Clagett Bowie will return to Washington today to spend four weeks with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. William Bowie. He will leave September 6 for Montclair, N. J., having accepted a position there. He will entertain on Tuesday evening at a bridge party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Richie, of Illinois.

New Navy Hostess

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. LAURENCE SAFFORD, wife of Lieut. Comdr. Safford, who has returned here with her husband from duty on the West Coast.

New Arrivals Welcomed at North Shore

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wilkins Take Lee Crossing House.

Washington friends at the North Shore colonies are welcoming Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wilkins, who have arrived with their daughter, Miss Katharine Wilkins, and their son, John F. Wilkins, jr., to spend the remainder of the season. They have taken the Vaughan cottage, Villa Marie, at Lee Crossing, Beverly Farms. It has a beautiful residence of the Italian style of architecture, wonderful gardens, and is just across the way from the far-famed West Beach, where many Washingtonians gather daily for bathing and beach parties. The Wilkinses for many seasons, have been in the Pump cottage at Beverly Farms, and last summer had the Ahl cottage at Prides Crossing.

Maj. George S. Patton, with Mrs. Patton and their family, is at Green Meadows, his country home in the Myopia district at Hamilton. Maj. Patton recently completed his service in Honolulu and the Philippines. Several of the horses which he had in Washington this past year and also in the islands have been taken to Hamilton. The Pattons do a great deal of hunting and their stables have some of the finest hunters in the Myopia district.

Mr. Keith Merrill recently joined his family at Avalon, their summer home at Prides Crossing. The estate is one of the most attractive on the North Shore and several seasons ago, when the Merrills were in Europe, it was occupied by the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Andrew W. Mellon.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Macaskill, accompanied by Mr. J. Sullivan, Mrs. C. H. Whipple, Miss Lydia Bulger and Miss Virginia Bulger, of St. Louis, left yesterday for Atlantic City for the remainder of the summer.

Lieut. Col. Calvin Matthews, of the Marine Corps, and Mrs. Matthews will leave this week for an extended motor trip to New England and Canada.

Mrs. George M. Eckels has gone to Long Island to spend the summer.

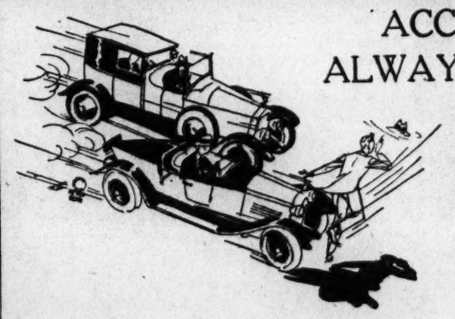
.....Money When You Need It Most...



ACCIDENTS ARE ALWAYS UNEXPECTED

When you leave your home this morning you will have no expectation of becoming involved in an accident and yet YOU NEVER KNOW — the threat of injury, even death, with attendant expense is ever present.

Who Would Pay the Bill?

If you should be struck by an automo bile today would you hope that its driver was adequately covered with insurance to protect you, or that through process of law you might EVENTUALLY be recompensed, or would you KNOW that the advantages offered through the medium of The Washington Post would provide "money when you need it most"?

$1.50 a year Will Protect You

With a $1,000 INDUSTRIAL AND ACCIDENT POLICY ISSUED THROUGH

The Washington Post

Not only will you be protected in event of injury on the street, at work or while riding in private or public conveyances, but in your own home surroundings (where the great majority of minor accidents occur) as well. No physical examination is required nor is there any occupational restriction. SCOUTS OBSERVE WORLD WAR DATE

Boys of Belligerent Nations Attend Thanksgiving in England.

SPEAK PLEDGE IN RAIN

Arrowe Park, England, August 4 (A.P.).—War bitterness was buried in striking fashion on this approximate anniversary of the World War's outbreak when German Boy Scouts with their English, French and Belgian comrades and with boys of many other nations in a great international thanksgiving service in the arena.

This younger generation of nations which had fought each other came together today in friendship and cooperation for the advancement of mankind and civilization. There were 30,000 scouts representing almost every faith and every nationality at the service and it seemed that only the strongest bonds of comradeship could have induced them to stand exposed to the deluge which swept over the park as the service ended.

The Archbishop of Canterbury conducted the service from the royal box and by his side stood Sir Robert Baden-Powell, who dreamed this dream of universal brotherhood 21 years ago.

The archbishop in his address alluded to this when he said, "Today behold this dreamer cometh, and he comes not alone but with the comradeship of nearly 2,000,000 boys belonging to 41 countries, his dream has become the world's reality."

Not far away on the recreation ground Cardinal Bourne conducted high mass for the Catholic scouts which had its thrilling climax when the throng stood bareheaded with upraised hands in a deluge of rain and gave the scout promise to do their best.

United Aircraft Gets Another Unit

Stearman Firm, of Wichita, Absorbed by Aviation Holding Company.

New York, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—The Stearman Aircraft Co., of Wichita, Kans., manufacturers of commercial airplanes, has been merged with the United Aircraft & Transport Corporation, aviation holding company. Announcement of the merger was made here by F. B. Retnschler, president of the United company, and Lloyd Stearman, head of the Wichita organization.

The Stearman company, organized in 1927, is engaged in the production of two sizes of open and closed ships. Hereafter it will be operated as a unit in the United group.

Terms of the merger call for the acquisition by the United corporation of all of the common stock of the Stearman company on the basis of 100 shares of United common for 375 shares of Stearman company stock. The merger entails no change in the personnel of the Stearman company.

United Aircraft now consists of the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co., Boeing Airplane Co., Boeing Air Transport, Inc.; Chance Vought Corporation, Hamilton Aero Manufacturing Co., Stout Air Services, Inc.; Sikorsky Aviation Corporation, United Aircraft Exports, Inc., and the Canadian Pratt & Whitney Co., Ltd.

FOUR CROSS OCEAN IN 46-FOOT KETCH

Cornell Men Reach Horta From New York in Twelve Days.

GOOD WEATHER HELPS

Horta, Azores, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—The 46-foot ketch Carlsark dropped anchor in the harbor here this evening with its crew of four amateur sailors, all of whom were Cornell University men, after a remarkable crossing of the Atlantic in twelve days.

The skipper, Carl L. Weagant, of Douglaston, Long Island, Cornell football manager last year, declared his three companions had not suspected they were crossing the Atlantic until more than half of the distance had been covered.

"We left New York secretly last June and sailed up the St. Lawrence. We reached Nova Scotia and left there on July 22. My crew of D. N. Schoales, J. M. Rumnler and H. R. Devereux, did not suspect my intention of crossing the Atlantic until we were half way to the Azores, seven days out.

"Twelve days of good weather made a splendid journey for us. We encountered a whale on entering the Gulf Stream. We have two radio receiving sets. We intend to leave for Fayal tomorrow and proceed by way of San Miguel and Gibraltar to the Mediterranean, returning by way of the Canary Islands and Cape Verde."

Capt. Weagant requested the Associated Press correspondent to notify several persons in the United States of the whereabouts and good health of the party. He was anxious to get this word to Roger A. Weagant, Derby Line, Vt.; Eduard Brumder, of Nashota, Wis.; J. J. Schoales, of 1633 Royalmont road, Cleveland, and the Post-Standard of Syracuse, N. Y.

Fascist Council To Convene Soon

Body May Be Called Upon to Confirm Statements of Mussolini.

Rome, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—The Grand Council of the Fasciat Party, the supreme body of both Italian state and party, was called today to meet the evening of August 30 by Augusto Turati, the party's secretary general.

It was expected the council will be called upon to confirm a number of declarations of Premier Mussolini growing out of conditions within the Fascist party, which he is understood to have decided necessitate a drastic house cleaning and expulsion of undesirable elements.

The premier already has begun steps to this end, the most notable being his suspension Saturday of Ernesto Belloni, former podesta (mayor) of Milan, from all political and party activities. Belloni had been charged by a committee investigating his official activities with using his office for personal aggrandizement.

It was understood the Duce wishes to clean up all equivocal situations and then close the ranks so that the party will present a united front October 28, anniversary of the march on Rome.

HEROES THAT SPEED THE DAY OF LIGHTER-THAN-AIR TRANSPORT

ABOVE, ominous clouds racing before the gale . . . below, mountains of water seething with fury of wind and rain . . . a giant ship-of-the-air watched by the eyes of the world. Heroes . . . making history . . . hastening the day of lighter-than-air transport. . . . .

Equally indispensable, if less spectacular, is the work of those who labor in shop and laboratory.

For years American scientists sought a more economical means of extracting helium for use in air-ships. In 1924 one of them perfected a process which today has made this safety gas commercially practical for aeronautics.

The faith of the inventor is shared by those who have risked their capital to give this infant American industry added impetus.

Unsung heroes, they, too, hasten the day of lighter-than-air transport.

TORCH IS BLAMED FOR BARGE BLAST

Ignited Gas Over Oil Deposit in Boat, Killing Five Workmen.

BODIES BLOWN INTO AIR

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—An explosion of an oil barge on the Ohio River at Kosmosdale, yesterday had claimed a toll of five lives today, with two men still missing.

The blast, which hurled mangled bodies of workmen through the air, was caused by the formation of gas over a two-inch layer of oil in the bottom of the barge, officials of the company said. They blamed the disaster on the use of an acetylene torch.

The dead are: Murray Jockel, 23, West Point, Ky.; Leslie Underwood, 32, Louisville; Ed O. Jupin, 45, Meadowlawn, Ky.; Cleve Skeeters, 45, Orell Ky.; Allen Sauer, 46, Louisville.

The two missing men are Frank Reader, 37, Rosewood, Ind., and William Wilberding, 29, Louisville. Divers from here were searching for the bodies today.

The blast killed Jockel and Underwood almost instantly. Sauer was taken to a hospital here, where he died later in the day. The bodies of Skeeters and Jupin were recovered from the river.

Just before Sauer died, he gave a vivid account of the explosion.

"The first thing I knew," he said, "was that I was being twisted through the air. It seemed that I would never stop twisting, and when I hit the water I realized what had happened."

A workman, standing near the barge, described the blast as "terrible."

"When I looked up," he said, "I saw men, parts off the barge and smoke and flames high in the air."

A. C. Brown, superintendent of the Kosmos Portland Cement Company, escaped death by a few seconds. He had just left the barge when the explosion occurred and said the force was so great that he was stunned for almost five minutes.

Miser Trusts His Hoard To Bank Under Protest

Police Insist on Deposit and Personally Supervise It After Landlady Becomes Suspicious About New Roomer's Jingling Trunk.

New York, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—For the first time in the 55 years of his life, William Langwell rode in a taxicab and deposited money in a bank. The money, contained in two pillow slips filled with $1, $5 and $10 bills and a large cardboard carton of silver, mostly quarters and half dollars, was placed in a bank Saturday afternoon at the request of the police.

Trundling a dilapidated trunk, Langwell rented a furnished room early Saturday from Mrs. Mary Saluga, of West Twentieth street. An offer to help carry the trunk upstairs was refused, and Langwell labored heavily with it. Several times the trunk slipped and jingled, and Mrs. Saluga feared glass contained in it had been broken.

Passing the open door of her new tenant's room, Mrs. Saluga saw her lodger sitting on the bed counting what appeared to be a huge fortune. Old and new currency mingled in democratic profusion on the bed. On the floor and in the trunk silver was piled in a corner.

Mrs. Saluga called the Twentieth Street Police Station, and Lieut. Samuel Dribben and Detective Jeremiah Maher investigated. For four years, Langwell told the police, he has been living on the money he had saved. Banks he refused to intrust with his money "because then he would have too far to walk to obtain a dollar when he needed one."

Langwell was bundled into a taxi and taken to the Century Bank, West Twenty-third street. Six employes, ready to leave as the bank was closing, were called back to count the assortment of bills and silver which Langwell placed on the counter. Although he refused to show his passbook, Langwell later told Mrs. Saluga he had deposited $6,000.

Machinery Worth $125 Stolen From Ice Firm

Thieves broke into the American Ice Company, 38 L street northeast, early yesterday, and stole $125 worth of machinery, the management of the ice company reported to police.

The machinery stolen consisted of one three-speed Fuller transmission; two truck brake drums; one truck propeller shaft, and one truck brake carriage.

Woman Seriously Hurt In Fall Down Stairs

Falling down the stairway at her home, Miss Mary Edwards, 84 years old, of 630 Webster street northwest, received a possible fracture of the skull and other serious injuries yesterday afternoon.

She was taken to Casualty Hospital, where her condition was reported to be serious.

Alcoholism Is Blamed As Capital Man Dies

Reported by his physician to be the victim of alcoholism, James B. Lafferty, 36 years old, of 124 C street northeast, died yesterday morning at that address after the Casualty Hospital ambulance was summoned to give him first aid.

He was pronounced dead by Dr. Stebbings, of Casualty Hospital, after the ambulance arrived. Dr. Albert Smith, of the Tudor Apartments, said he had been treating Lafferty for several weeks.

700 MEN FIGHTING BIG FOREST BLAZES

New Fires Set by Lightning Combatted by Posses in Northwest States.

EARLY CONTROL LIKELY

Crandon, Wis., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—More than 500 men kept an active Sunday vigil over northeastern Wisconsin's forest fires. A number of new conflagrations were reported today near Silver Lake and along the Peshtigo River. None of them, however, was serious.

Fires in the southern portion of Forest County today were reported under control, as were the more serious ones in Oconto County. Given rains and a lack of stiff winds, fire fighters said the situation would be under control within 24 hours.

Lumbering villages in the fire zone, although choked with smoke, were thought to be out of danger. There was virtually no wind in the fire area over the week-end. Acres of dry slashings in the path of the flames, which already are dangerously near to several valuable stands of timber, and wind, are the most feared.

Save for a light shower on Friday, not a drop of rain has fallen in the fire area in more than three weeks.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Reports tonight from north Idaho indicated that the forest fires started by lightning were making but little headway and it was believed all the blazes were under control.

The largest fire, in the National Forest near Sand Point, was said to have covered 5,000 acres, mostly second growth timber, and was giving the crews combatting it some trouble.

Reports from the Wenatchee and Chelan districts said 12,000 acres had burned over and that a 5-mile irrigation flume was destroyed. Thunderbolts yesterday started scores of fires in Northwester States.

Work of Labor Party Censured

British Independent Party Leader Makes Demand for Disarmament.

Digswell Park, England, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—James Maxton, leader of the Independent party, told students at the Labor party school for campaign speakers that the speech from the throne produced by the new Labor government was one of the most disappointing things he had ever read and that the actions of the government since were even more disappointing.

"We are not prepared to wait centuries for socialism, nor are we prepared to wade through slaughter for a better social order," he said. "We must make an insistent demand for disarmament. When it is reduced to its final analysis, the defense for armaments in peace time is that we require them for defense of the Empire. The right, wise and sensible thing for the Labor government to do is to break up the British Empire into its constituent parts at the earliest possible moment."

New Sino-Soviet Rupture Impends

China Refuses to Allow Russians to Guard Eastern Railway.

Tokyo, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Rengo News Agency dispatches from Manchuli, Manchuria, today said a rupture threatened Sino-Russian negotiations growing out of the Chinese Eastern Railroad controversy because of the Russian demand of the right to station troops along the railroad. These Soviet troops would share its patroling with Chinese troops.

It was understood the Russians contended any undertaking by the Chinese to restore the status quo would be valueless without this guarantee. Tsai Yun-Shend, commissioner for foreign affairs at Harbin, who is negotiating for the Chinese government, referred the matter to the provincial government at Mukden, and, it was understood, has been instructed to refuse.

Nevertheless both sides were reported preparing for a formal conference soon at Chita, Siberia.

RCA introduces the "66"

RCA RADIOLA 66—RCA Super-Heterodyne with RCA Electro-Dynamic reproducer in rich cabinet. For house current (A.C.) operation. Magnifying station reader. Local-and-distance switch . . . $225 (less Radiotrons.)*

NEW—and still finer

RADIOLA SUPER-HETERODYNE

at the unprecedented price of $225*

A still finer Radiola Super-Heterodyne—combined with the incomparable RCA Electro-Dynamic reproducer—in a handsome cabinet—equipped for "all-electric" operation from your wall socket—with a connection for an electric pick-up to reproduce phonograph records.

At $225 (less Radiotrons)—a price made possible by the great manufacturing resources of RCA—this superb instrument, without a peer in the radio art, is no longer a luxury to be enjoyed by a few fortunate owners. Receiving sets of comparable quality formerly cost from $500 to $1000—but they did not equal the new "66" in fidelity of tone, or simplicity of operation.

To improve the Radiola Super-Heterodyne is to gild the lily—but here is an expertly designed broadcast receiving instrument in which the amazingly efficient Super-Heterodyne circuit has been brought to a higher level of achievement.

RCA engineers have again added to the wonderful qualities of the Super-Heterodyne—finer sensitivity, more selectivity, a greater reserve of power for distant stations, and still richer tone quality—the greatest essential of a fine radio. The latest type of the RCA Electro-Dynamic reproducer is coupled with the new Super-Heterodyne—a combination that offers the utmost in radio realism—from a whisper to a brass band.

Radio Story Of Trotsky To Be Given

Exile Topic Over W. R. C. Tonight; Noted Theater Conductor Will Direct Concert; Opera Slated as W. M. A. L. Feature.

A symphony concert, under direction of Eugene Ormandy, noted theater conductor, will be broadcast in the General Motors Family Party at 8:30 o'clock tonight from WRC. Kreisler's "Liebesleid" and "The Hungarian Dance" from Tschaikowsky's "Lake of Swans" will be heard as features of the program, which includes the overture to "Der Fledermaus," Strauss; "Slavonic Dance," Dvorak; "Dance of the Comedians" from "The Bartered Bride," Smetana; "Oriental Serenade," Herbert; "Hymn to the Sun," Rimsky-Korsakoff; and a dance from "Henry VIII," Sullivan.

Dorothea Edwards, operatic contralto, and sister of the comedian, Gus Edwards, will be the star of the Roxq Gang broadcast at 6:30 o'clock.

The overture "Poet and Peasant," by Franz von Suppe, opens the regular broadcast by the A. & P. Gypsies at 7:30 o'clock. The orchestra is directed by Harry Horlick who has arranged the following program: "Press Thy Cheek Against Mine Own," Jensen; "Lilac Domino," Cullivier; "Stephanie" and "Neapolitan Love Song" from "Princess Pat," Herbert; "Marionette," Arndt; "To a Wild Rose," MacDowell; "Conchita," Staub; "Just That I Loved You," Eames; "Serenade," Moszkowski, and "Fackeltanz," Meyerberg.

A word picture of Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian, will be given by Floyd Gibbons in "Hunting Headlines Around the World" at 9:30 o'clock.

The overture to Bellini's "Norma," a Druidic opera recently revived at the Metropolitan with Rosa Ponselle in the title role has been selected for presentation during the hour of slumber music at 10 o'clock. Ludwig Laurier will conduct the orchestra in the following selections: "Vienne Bonbons," Strauss; a number by the string quartet; "Prelude in G Minor," Rachmaninoff; "Salut d'Amour," Elgar; "The Old Refrain," Kreisler, and "Evening Devotion," Koehler.

The "Pilgrims Chorus" from Wagner's opera "Tannhauser" will be a feature of the grand opera concert from WMAL at 7 o'clock. The other excerpts are the overture to Thomas' "Raymond," a selection from "Samson and Delilah," Saint Saens, and "Furiant" from "The Bartered Bride," Smetana.

The United States Navy Band, directed by Lieut. Charles Benter, will be heard from WMAL between 8:30 and 9 o'clock.

Johnnie Graham will open the program from WJSV with a number of popular songs from recent musical comedy successes. The Virginia Judge, a regular Monday evening feature from this station, will be on at 8 o'clock. The Sons of the American Revolution will present Wade H. Cooper, lawyer, who will discuss the duty of patriotic societies. The program will close with a request hour, featuring entertainers who will sing and play the numbers asked for by WJSV's listeners.

In Wilmington, Del., lives Pierre S. duPont, head of the great chemical industry of the same name, an industry mammoth even in this day of great manufacturing dynasties. Mr. duPont has spent the greater part of his life directing the fortunes of this industry, but in his free moments he has developed a keen appreciation of music. The Edison program, to be broadcast from WBAL at 8 o'clock, will feature Mr. duPont's favorite musical selections. Frank Black will direct the concert.

WORK'S BRIDGE

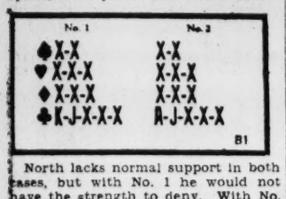
(This article is intended for the bridge novice.)

WHEN, at a love score, a dealer bids one of a suit and second hand passes, it is the duty of third hand (dealer's partner), when he has the strength for a bid, to bid a higher-valued declaration if the dealer has bid a minor; but the partner should pass a major if he has normal support for it. Lacking normal support, he should bid some other suit or No Trump. Normal support for partner's suit is the holding of three cards of it, or two cards when one of them is the Ace or the King, or when the two are the Queen and the Jack.

Bidding another suit or No Trump over partner's major is a "denial" because it shows that the hand does not contain normal support; it also shows that the hand has at least one trick.

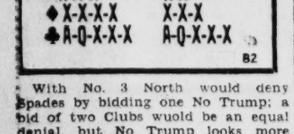
A pass, however, is not an affirmance of normal support; it may indicate a hand too weak for a denial.

Suppose South (dealer' bids one Spade, West passes and North holds:



North lacks normal support in both cases, but with No. 1 he would not have the strength to deny. With No. 2 he should bid two Clubs.

Here are two other types of denial:



With No. 3 North would deny Spades by bidding one No Trump; a bid of two Clubs would be an equal denial, but No Trump looks more promising for game, and it is conventionally understood that denying a major by a bid of two of a minor is also a denial of help for the No Trump outside of the minor.

With No. 4 North should pass and South will have to learn from later developments whether the pass means normal support or general weakness. In this case it is made because a No Trump bid would deny normal Spade support which North has.

Next Monday, false denial.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

"Leo."

IF August 5th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m., and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Viewed from a material standpoint, this day is not a lucky one. Financial gains are not likely to be permanent in character, as deception is to be feared in business matters. There will be a tendency to pursue impractical ideas.

Children born on this August 5th will have original, aggressive natures, with the ability to lead. They will love to excel, and will apply the same vigor to their sports and games that they put into their studies.

You not only desire power, but you are willing to earn it by unsparing energy and sleepless devotion to the task in hand. There is a danger, however, of your ambition carrying you prematurely forward. Your future depends largely upon whether you can learn patience and the virtue of waiting. You often attempt to strike before the iron is hot. It is true that you are a man or woman of action, and that you have driving power. As yet, you are not a careful or skilled engineer of your plans.

You are not inclined to worry and are too willing to leave affairs in the laps of the gods. A little more caution and forethought on your part, would often forestall disaster.

Life and action are two factors which you desire during your recreational hours. Solitude is something you shun at all times. You are eclectic in your tastes and catholic in your choice of friends. You will never become the pet of a restricted social set. Your popularity and the marked affection which is universally bestowed upon you, is due in a great measure to your genuine democracy. No matter what your birth, you display a tactful ease in meeting people of every rank, grade and condition in life.

War Veterans to Meet.

The General Henry W. Lawton Camp No. 4, United Spanish War Veterans, will hold its regular monthly meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at the Pythian Temple, according to announcement by James E. Smith, adjutant.

Victor Uses New Design In Receiver

Improved Superheterodyne Circuit, With Electric Loud Speaker, Features of Late Model; Summer Sales Good.

A new receiver, employing an improved A. C. superhetereodyne circuit, inclosed in a console cabinet with an electro-dynamic loud speaker, was announced yesterday by E. A. Nicholas, vice president of the Radio-Victor Corporation of America.

The superheterodyne circuit used in the new receiver, Radiola 66, includes a tuned antenna coupling circuit, one stage of power amplification. The elimination of one stage of audio frequency amplification materially increases the tone fidelity and reduces the possibility of distortion present when successive stages of amplification are used, the announcement states.

Six A. C. radiotrons UY-227 and one power amplifier tube UX-245 are used in the circuit. Radiotron UX-280 is employed in the power unit to rectify the A. C. current for the plate and grid supply of all the tubes and, also, to provide current for the loud speaker field supply.

The single tuning control operates a new type of stencil cut selector dial by means of which illuminated scale markings from 0 to 100, as well as approximate kilocycle markings, are projected on a translucent composition screen and magnified for easy reading. The volume control regulates the loud speaker output from inaudibility to full volume. A local-distance switch provides equally fine reception on both strong local and weak distant stations. Facilities are provided for attaching an electric pick-up to reproduce phonograph records.

The cabinet is of attractive two-tone walnut veneer, with burled maple overlays. The loud speaker opening and control panel are covered with cut velours. The pattern of the material has been skillfully worked out so that the controls appear to form a part of the design.

Summer sales of radio products and also production are now at their peak, according to a statement today by President H. B. Richmond, of the Radio Manufacturers Association, in announcing the meeting of the R. M. A. board of directors to be held Thursday, August 8, at the Clifton Hotel, Niagara Falls, Ontario. Many national radio problems, especially those relating to the manufacturer, will be discussed by the R. M. A. board, with plans for expansion of service to the radio public and to members of the association.

"Summer sales of radio products are excellent," said President Richmond. "Many of our manufacturers report that summer business this year is as good or better than last summer, despite the fact that there was the extraordinary stimulus to sales last year of the political campaign. Better broadcasting, including unique hot weather novelties developed by the broadcasters, together with better performing receiving sets, are undoubted reasons for the wider summer use and enjoyment of radio.

"New products, new models with the substantial improvements made by the industry, have been made available to the public and placed on the market sooner this year. Virtually all of the new radio products shown at the RMA Trade Show at Chicago last June are now on the market, in some cases about 60 days sooner than in past years. And many of our manufacturers have greatly increased their production schedules. A midsummer survey gives every indication of an excellent radio year, with better radio programs, better broadcasting and better products, with more value per dollar to the radio purchaser than ever before."

The meeting of the RMA directors at Niagara Falls will be the first one ever held on Canadian soil and also the first since the RMA annual convention and trade show at Chicago last June. The RMA leaders will discuss plans for the coming year, including development of the Association's engineering service, to cover the entire industry, its new merchandising department, traffic, credit and other services to RMA members.

Plans for the annual radio world's fair at Madison Square Garden, sponsored by the RMA, and a similar public exhibition at the Chicago Coliseum in October also will receive the attention of the RMA board.

Dare Interprets the Mode

AN excellent instance of the response of fashion trends to artistic, literary and political influences is the lavish use of color these past few seasons—which, in the Paris Haute Couture, has been almost entirely the result of the popularity of African art, the romances of Paul Morand dealing with negro life and the like.

It must be remembered that France has an enormous negro population in her colonies. We have no official figures on the subject, but well-informed Frenchmen have told us that this population is four times as great as the white population of France. When to France's political and economic interest was added the present worldwide craze for negro music and negro art, it was inevitable that Fashion, that most sensitive of all barometers, should feel the effect.

• • • •

And that effect has been most pronounced in the field of color—gay printed fabrics, barbaric jewelry of direct African parentage, jungle leathers for shoes and bags—and always a riot of color.

In hats we have a pronounced tendency toward the so-called exotic straws, frequently imported from the colonies—and one of these straws, made in Africa from palm fibers, is even used for dresses and coats.

The most lovely-goofy flowers, made of gold or silver-foil, in odd, modernistic designs—you can't eemagine how much fun they are to make nor how chic they are to own! Just a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to hte Dare Department of The Washington Post will bring you an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make them.

• • • •

Very few people can aspire to the possession of pieces of silver actually belonging to the Grand Siecle, as every one knows that nearly all the fine table services were melted down. But something that every one does NOT know is that the designs were carefully preserved, and that the master-silversmiths of today are making perfect copies, or still better, new creations inspired by the traditions of the Louis XIV period and adapted to modern requirements.

What do you know how to make? Better be thinking it over and trying to explain it on paper, too—Clever Fingers Contest is going to begin soon!

Grey and sparkling red! Sounds as though it might almost be more startling than chic, doesn't it? But when 'tis a Philippe et Gaston model—one can be certain of its smartness.

So certain that we illustrated it for you today, turtle-dove grey and brilliant garnet red incrustations and all.

The Woodchuck.

"HOW much wood could a woodchuck chuck if a woodchuck could chuck wood?"

That is an old question, which is meant to be spoken rapidly. The answer should be spoken just as rapidly:

"A woodchuck could chuck as much wood as a woodchuck could chuck if a woodchuck could chuck wood."

Fat and sleepy, the woodchuck crawls into a hole for his winter rest.

The truth is that woodchucks do not "chuck" or do anything else to wood, except (now and then) to gnaw at the bark of a tree or to sleep in a hollow log. The origin of their name is not certain, but it may come from "chuck," an old slang word for pig. The woodchuck is indeed a "pig of the woods." After it comes out in the spring, lean and hungry, it eats and eats and eats. By fall it is so fat that it can hardly wobble around.

Woodchucks eat grass, herbs and berries. They go lazily about, making meals here, there and everywhere. If they do not make their home in a hollow log, they have a hole in the ground. When they dig a hole for a home, they work at a rapid pace—this is about the only time they do not seem lazy.

During the warmer weather many woodchucks browse in fields and pastures, eating grass and clover blossoms. Not seldom do they wander to gardens, where they eat heads of cabbage, the leaves and pods of beans, the ears of corn and pumpkin vines.

Woodchucks have thick skins and heavy-boned skulls, and can not be killed by a shotgun except at close quarters. When a dog goes down a woodchuck hole he is likely to come out again with a badly bitten nose.

Witmer Stone tells of a young woodchuck which was caught and tamed at the farmhouse in which he lived. It was at first fed milk from a bottle but later learned to eat green food and blossoms. From time to time it chased a cat away from a saucer of milk by snipping at its toes. Then young Mr. Woodchuck took care of the milk.

Woodchucks spend the winter sleeping in hole or log. The fat which they have stored up during the warm season keeps them alive.

Today's True Detective Story

Three Glasses of Vermouth

By VANCE WYNN

IT happened in the days before the Volstead act. Louis Leroy kept a little French restaurant in old St. Louis which was famous for its vermouth. One morning three strangers came to the cafe and informed the delighted Louis that a friend had told them he possesses the best vermouth to be found in the United States. Each of them ordered a glass and each of them paid for it with a silver dollar.

That was very fine indeed, but it was not so fine when Louis Leroy found that the strangers had given him three counterfeit dollars.

He notified the police, and it did not take them long to discover that the vermouth-loving gentlemen had been going to different parts of the city and leaving their bad money with all sorts of tradesmen. J. E. Murphy was then in charge of the St. Louis branch of the United States Secret Service, and it was "up to him" to find out who was passing the bad money and to halt its manufacture. It was not an easy matter, because Louis had been so overcome by the flattery of his three customers that he could hardly describe them. They looked very much like other men, but they had such persuasive voices and their choice of language was truly marvelous.

But Louis was furious that he should be tricked in such a shameful way, and the thought of these men was ever in his mind. One day he saw one of them on Shelby avenue and he followed him until he found where he was living. Then he notified the police, and they in turn informed Chief Murphy. A man was designated to shadow the lover of vermouth, and it did not take him long to discover that the suspect was in the habit of getting letters from a little town, called De Sota. This was not far from St. Louis, and Murphy decided to go there in person and explore the place. He registered at a hotel under an assumed name and let the impression go forth that he was a traveling salesman. None suspected that his employer was Uncle Samuel, of Washington, D. C.

He had not been in the town twenty-four hours when he spotted the chap who had been shadowed in St. Louis. Presently this fellow was joined by two other men, and Murphy was convinced that they were the three who had passed the bogus money on Louis Leroy.

Fortunately, Murphy had not became known to men in St. Louis and was thus able to hold intercourse with them in the little town of De Sota. He found that they spent most of their days in pleasure, but could not ascertain what they did in the evenings. There was a powerhouse in the outskirts of the town that had once been used by an electric light company. It was abandoned now and in a state of semi-ruin. Some of the children of the place declared that it was haunted, and when the good-natured detective questioned them declared that they had seen a light in the building.

He put two and two together and decided that it was almost time to act. He decided to take a look at the abandoned powerhouse. He went about it very cautiously, and when he got there found that it was dimly lighted. He managed to peer through a hole in the wall, and what he beheld was exactly what he had expected. A fire had been kindled on the pavement of the powerhouse and hanging over it by iron chains was a crucible. Three men were in the room working. One of them was throwing stuff in the pot and the others were working at a bench.

Murphy quickly summoned assistance and then went into the powerhouse and placed the three men under arrest. They had a complete counterfeiting outfit, including copper, antimony and block tin. Five plaster of paris molds were found in the shed, two of them intended for half dollars.

Carlos, Sanders and Morton did not even resist arrest. They accepted the inevitable. All three were convicted and sentenced to long terms in the penitentiary. They had taken the chance and they paid the penalty without a murmur.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

THIS is the season in which parents should be on the alert for infantile paralysis. The great New York epidemic of 1926 began in May. As a rule, local epidemics begin with a few scattered cases in early summer, grow to a moderate outbreak in July and August and then blossom in epidemic form in September, to die out slowly in October.

Dudley says that five-sixths of the people who pick up the germs of infantile paralysis become carriers of the disease without having any symptoms. The other sixth is divided into three sub-groups: the abortive, the nonparalytic and the paralytic. The object of quarantine is to prevent the development of all four groups—the symptomless carriers and the three groups with symptoms—the abortive, the nonparalytic and the paralytic.

The measures of quarantine in general use are isolation and the exclusion of flies. Since infantile paralysis rarely prevails except during the fly season it is good judgment to see that flies never get to the patient nor to any of his excretions. Two other quarantine measures have been suggested. A few small epidemics have been proved to have been spread by milk. Therefore, in the infantile paralysis season children should not drink raw milk and people who have been around cases should not milk cows or work in dairies or milk plants. It is well to keep down dust in and around cases of infantile paralysis.

At the present time there is no way to diagnose the carriers of poliomyelites. This large group, five-sixths of the total, can not be discovered by any laboratory examination or in any other way.

The largest number of cases, in all probability, belongs to what is called the abortive type. These cases usually have a few days of diarrhea, a fever lasting one day, and possibly a little more irritability on the one hand, or sleepiness on the other, than is usual in a simple indigestion. Instead of diarrhea, there may be constipation, or vomiting may take the place of the diarrhea. This group of cases is seldom suspected of being manifestations of infantile paralysis. The mother may think her child has acidosis. When he gets over his drowsiness or his irritability in two days, she is certain she was right. Or, more likely, she thinks the case one of indigestion, stops all food, gives a dose of castor oil, and allows plenty of drinking water. Two days later the child is well and remains so. There is no doubt in her mind as to the cause of the trouble.

Unfortunately, there are no laboratory tests or definite symptoms by which the abortive type of infantile paralysis can be diagnosed. Probably the safe policy is to isolate every child who develops diarrhea, constipation, slight fever, and symtoms of acidosis during the summer months. The isolation should include protection against flies. There would be some gain from an isolation limited to the two or three days of acute illness.

Tomorrow's article will deal with the nonparalytic and the paralytic forms of infantile paralysis.

Miss Krucoff Retains D.C. Net Title

Mrs. Martinez Gives Rival Battle but Bows, 6-2, 6-4.

Doubles Finals Are Scheduled Today at Columbia.

FRANCES KRUCOFF won her fourth District of Columbia women's singles tennis championship yesterday by defeating Mrs. Ruth Martinez, whose play was the sensation of the earlier rounds, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4, at the Columbia Country Club. The victory gave Miss Krucoff a second leg on the H. E. Doyle challenge bowl and she now needs but one more win for permanent possession.

Today, Miss Krucoff will strive for the added distinticon of holding the doubles championship, as she is paired with Miss Josephine Dunham in the final match of the doubles division against the defending champions, Misses Frances Walker and Phoebe Moorhead, who gained the last bracket yesterday by trouncing Mrs. Martinez and Dr. Elizabeth Chickering, 6—3, 6—1. Today's match wil start at 4 o'clock.

From the outset Miss Krucoff proved superior to Mrs. Martinez, but she was forced to exert all of her court knowledge at all times to capture the decision. Greater steadiness on both defense and attack was the chief factor in her favor.

Mrs. Martinez Brilliant At Times.

At times Mrs. Martinez was brilliant, but more often she was erratic In fact, it was this fault that produced about half of the champion's points, for Miss Krucoff simply waited for her errors. The rest of Miss Krucoff's points were due to smart placements, one of which was the last point of the match. The champion took the net whenever the opportunity presented itself and she seldom failed to get the desired results.

Starting off at top speed, Miss Krucoff ran up a lead of 4 to 0 in games in the first set, twice piercing Mrs. Martinez's service. The challenger took the fifth game on Miss Krucoff's delivery and added the next on her own. Then Miss Krucoff regained her stride and took the set with the succeeding two games.

Mrs. Martinez gave her supporters a thrill in the second set by taking the lead at 3 to 1. At this stage she was burning over her touted drives, much to Miss Krucoff's dismay. But it was only a flurry, and the champion came back to annex the next four games in a row, she lost the ninth on her own service, and after missing match point four times in the tenth game, finally whipped over a couple of placements for the victory.

Misses Walker, Moorhead Advance in Doubles.

The singles apparently sapped much of Mrs. Martinez's stamina, for which she played a most inconspicuous part in the doubles semi-final. As her partner, Dr. Chickering, was woefully off form, the match resulted in a runaway for their opponents, Misses Walker and Moorhead. Miss Moorhead gave a sterling exhibition of net play that accounted for more than half of the winner's points.

Miss Edith McCulloch, former Central High School star, won the consolation singles final by defeating Miss Esther Jolley, champion of Tech High School, 7—5, 6—4.

Following is the point score of the Krucoff-Martinez match:

	FIRST SET.
Krucoff..	5	4	4	4	9	5	4	5	—38—6
Martinez.	3	2	2	1	11	5	1	3	—28—2
	SECOND SET.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, is pouting at this department.

Recently there appeared herein an item to the effect that McGraw, angered by the failure of his club to better its position in the National League race, was fining his players right and left and that he was reported to have soaked Frank Hogan a total of about $1,000. McGraw, in rebuttal, asserts that he has fined but three players this season Hogan is one of them, he admits, but he declares Francis has been fined but $75. That makes a lot of difference, of course, especially to Mr. Hogan.

Mr. Hogan seems to be pretty angry about the matter. He probably will be a lot angrier when he learns that the misinformation about which he complains was supplied by a member of his own organization. However, an apology clearly is owing McGraw and Hogan and it is hereby extended.

Mr. McGraw also makes it known that he resents insinuations that his alleged practice of signaling to pitchers has cramped their effectiveness. He says that only rarely does he signal what kind of ball to throw and usually does so only when the pitcher looks to him for advice. Judging from the way some of his hurlers have pitched at times this season, it might be a good idea for somebody to tell them what to throw.

Yanks Seek Outfield Material.

The Yanks, who have an eye peeled for outfield material to replace Ruth, Meusel and Combs when those veterans go the way of all baseball flesh, seem to have acquired a real prize in Bennie Cooke, the youngster parked for the season with Schoolmaster Bob Connery, in St. Paul. Cooke has been leading the American Association batting procession for ten solid weeks, and now boasts the eminently respectable average of .376. Bob Meusel is hitting a puny .282.

Big Gaps Separate Classes Among Women Net Stars.

The gaps between the three divisions of women tennis stars are as wide as a politician's campaign smile In the first division, in lonely majesty, is Helen Wills. In the second division and also in a class by herself stands Helen Jacobs. The third division includes all the rest. There is no other woman in the country who has any business on the same court with either of the two Helens.

Man o' War Never Sore Or Sick During Career.

Blue Larkspur's retirement at the height of his racing career because of a bowed tendon set Louis Feustel, noted trainer, to discussing his favorite topic, Man o' War. Feustel trained the superhorse for Samuel D. Riddle.

"Every time a horse goes wrong, I think of Man o' War." said Feustel. "Most thoroughbreds are very susceptible to injury or illness, but Man o' War was never even sore and never had a sick day in his life. He could go any distance in any kind of going and in all my experience with him I never once saw him tired. Boy, what a horse he was!"

West Golfers Dominate in Amateur

Official Entry Fails to Include MacKenzie; 162 Named.

Cyril Tolley Is Only Serious Foreign Contender.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE list of entries for the national amateur golf championship to be played on the Pebble Beach course, near Monterey, Calif., beginning September 2, released for publication this morning, contains 162 names. California, has naturally the largest percentage of entrants, no less than 55 being registered from that State alone. Altogether there are 97 contestants from States west of the Mississippi, including 9 from Oregon and 4 from Washington. Canada will send three contestants, including Don Carrick and Ross Somerville, former champions, and five are credited to Great Britain, although it is noticeable that the name of Phillip Perkins, former British amateur champion, does not appear. Cyril Tolley, present British amateur champion, is the one serious foreign contender, although Lord Charles Hope and Maj. Colin Campbell are not without distinction in Great Britain.

With a preponderance of Pacific Coast entries, including all the best-known players of that section, the probability is that the Easterners will be in a minority when the 32 who qualify for match play are announced.

16 Golfers Hold Hope Of the East.

At the same time, there are many unexpected additions to the list of Eastern golfers printed in The Post yesterday morning. It is not difficult, with the completed list in evidence, to select sixteen who might be considered as having more than an even chance to qualify, as follows:

Robert T. Jones, Atlanta.
George von Elm, Detroit.
Francis Ouimet, Boston.
George J. Voigt, New York.
Jesse P. Guilford, Boston.
D. Clarke Corkran, Philadelphia.
Eddie Held, New York.
Watts Gunn, Pittsburg.
Charles Evans, jr., Chicago.
Jess Sweetser, New York.
William C. Fownes, jr., Pittsburgh.
George Dawson, Chicago.
Eugene V. Homans, Englewood, N. J.
Rudolph E. Knepper, Chicago.
Maurice J. McCarthy, jr., New York.
Fred. J. Wright, jr., Boston.

The above list does not include the name of Roland MacKenzie, of the Columbia Country Club and former national medalist, although it appears in the entry list, for he stated yesterday, while on a week-end visit to his parents, that while he hopes to go to Pebble Beach, his plans are not yet definitely determined. There are several others in the list worthy of mention, including Chris Dunphy, who is registered from Chappaqua, N. Y.; Guy Standifer, whose present New York residence classifies him with the easterners; William F. McPhail, Boston; Arthur Yates, Rochester; John D. Ames, Chicago; John Dawson, Chicago; John S. Grimes, Maryland State champion; Sam Perry, Birmingham's golfing star; and H. A. Wisotzkey, of York, Pa., who has played fine golf in tournaments in this section. Harrison R. Johnston and Harry G. Legg, although representing Minnesota, west of the Mississippi, will probably be regarded in California as Eastern players.

West Has Players of National Reputation.

Although the 97 credited to the West consist in large measure of names unfamiliar to Easterners, there is a goodly proportion of players with national reputations. Take, for instance, Keefe Carter, of Oklahoma; J. F. Neville, Monterey, six times California champion; John J. McHugh, San Francisco, who holds the official record of the Pebble Beach course; Heinie Schmidt, Oakland, Calif.; Dr. Paul M. Hunter, Pasadena; Max H. Behr, Hollywood; Louis Jacoby, Dallas, Texas; Charles D. 'Chuck" Hunter, Tacoma, Wash.; Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland; Donald

Yanks Win, Lose, in 2 Slugfests With Tribe

New York, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—The Yankees ended their home stand against the West by dividing two games with Cleveland here today. The home forces won the opener by 12 to 0 behind Tom Zachary's fine pitching, but Herb Pennock and others cracked up in the second game which the visitors won by 14 to 6 through a ninth-inning rally for nine runs.

Sam Crane, Ex-Nat, Held in Shooting of 2

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Samuel "Red" Crane, 34, former major league third baseman, was being held here today in connection with the fatal shooting of Jack Oren, 28 and the serious wounding of Della Lynder, 26. All are residents of this city. Oren died at the Harrisburg Hospital early today. Miss Lynder was reported tonight to be in a critical condition.

Police indicated tonight that a charge of murder would be placed against Crane. They said he was too much under the influence of intoxicating liquor to be questioned today and that questioning will be conducted tomorrow by District Attorney Fox, of Dauphin County.

Crane, a product of the local sandlots, started his baseball career with the New Cumberland Team in 1912. He played with Greensboro, in the South Atlantic League, the following year and was purchased by Connie Mack. He was with the Athletics for one year and was then sent to the Baltimore Orioles for seasoning. After several years at Baltimore he was sold to the Washington Americans, who later traded him to Cincinnati.

HELEN WILLS IN DOUBLES VICTORY

With Edith Cross as Partner, She Wins, 1-6, 6-1, 6-1.

EASTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—"Queen" Helen Wills made her first appearance on the courts of the Maidstone Club today, playing two doubles matches in the Women's Invitation Tennis Tournament, but her debut for the event was overshadowed by the performances of a group of unranked youngsters.

Miss Wills, with Edith Cross, of San Francisco, as her partner, met with a great surprise at the very start when Marie Fensterer, of Englewood, N. J., and Genevive Fox, of Southampton, N. Y., ran away with the first set of their first round match. The Californians rallied after the bad start to win by scores of 1—6, 6—1, 6—1, they then went on to beat a pair of high ranking opponents, Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin, of Springfield, Mass., and Marjorie Gladman, of Santa Monica, Calif., No. 9 and No. 7 in the national ranking, 6—3, 6—2.

In the singles matches, Virginia Rice, of Boston, defeated Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., in a terrific three-set battle by scores of 8—6, 8—6, 7—5.

Tomorrow, Miss Rice meets the last survivor of the British Wightman Cup squad, Mrs. D. C. Shepherd-Barron.

"Midge" Gladman Gains Singles Finals.

Although she lost in the doubles "Midge" Gladman became the first of the singles finalists by three brilliant victories in quick succession; finishing the second round, she swamped Josephine Cruickshank under a 6—3, 6—0 score. In the third, Miss Gladman defeated her doubles partner, Mrs. Chapin, 6—1, 6—4, then smashed her way into the last round at the expense of Mrs. Phyllis Covell, of Great Britain, 6—3, 6—4.

These brilliant performances completely overshadowed the play of Miss Wills, who was in decidedly bad form at the start. During the first set, her stroking was faulty and frequent errors were the principal cause of her defeat. Her young opponents twice broke through her service in the seven games. Both Miss Wills and Miss Cross were guilty of many errors in the other four sets they played although their game improved rapidly.

Morris Gives Chisox 2 Hits, Red Sox Win

Boston, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Ed Morris held the White Sox to two hits here today and the Red Sox won the third and deciding game of the series 8 to 0.

Both hits off Morris were singles. One was a slow infield roller by Ciasell in the fourth and the other a clean hit by Berg in the fifth. Morris passed four men and Cissel alone of the White Sox reached third base.

Cubs Increase Lead By Trimming Robins

Chicago, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Chicago made it two straight over Brooklyn by winning, 6 to 4, today before an overflown crowd of 48,000.

The victory increased Chicago's lead to 6½ games.

Cuyler, with three hits, led the Cub attack. Stephenson hit a home run. Blake was unsteady at the start, but settled down and allowed only three hits in the last six innings.

BADLY BRUISED

Tigers Score 7 Runs in Opener After Hayes' Error.

22 Passes in Wierd Second Game Stopped by Darkness.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

PRESIDENT Clark Griffith, recuperating from an appendicitis operation, was one of the 15,000 who made up the Sabbath gathering at the Georgia Avenue stadium yesterday afternoon and what the Nationals showed him likely sent him back to bed again. A double-header against Bucky Harris' Tigers was the magnet which brought the largest crowd in many moons to see Johnson's men perform and they lost both games, each one of which left a bad taste in the mouth. Detroit won the first affair, 10 to 5, and then overcame an 8-run Washington lead to take the nightcap, 13 to 11.

Garland Braxton and Earl Whitehill started on the mound in the first fracas, with Myles Thomas finishing for the Nats after the southpa

UPSETS MARK START OF PRINCE GEORGES SERIES

Bowie Downs Hyattsville Twice

Berwyn in 2 Wins Over Clinton A. C. by 11-4 and 14-8.

Capitol Heights and Lanham Divide in Double-Header.

THE Bowie Motor Co. Nine upset the dope yesterday in trimming the Hyattsville All-Stars in both games of a double bill at Riverdale as the Prince Georges County unlimited championship series got under way. The Bowie Nine romped off with 5 to 4 and 2 to 1 victories, while the Berwyn Club was beating Clinton, 11 to 4 and 14 to 8, in the other two first division contests. Capitol Heights Junior Order and Lanham A. C. divided two games played at Lanham, 16 to 6 and 4 to 3. These latter contests were the only games listed in the second section as the Maryland A. C. and Mount Rainier nines drew byes.

Jones and Roche Star On Mount.

Bowie's triumphs may be largely credited to the sensational pitching of Jones and Roche. The former fanned eleven while limiting the Hyattsville sluggers to five hits in the first game, while Roche gave but a pair of singles and whiffed seven in the closing number.

After taking a decision beating the first game, Lanham counted four runs in the first inning of the second game to nose out their rivals and get an even break. Berwyn accomplished its double triumph by hard and frequent hitting.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT B. COLLYER

WASH Day out at Hawthorne and the going is still deep. Which by the same token means those nags with tender underpinning will be benefited.

One of these to be jerked forth from the old brinery is none other than ROYCROFTER, a trick which has been going great guns in private. Most recent speed test was a half in 0:48 1-5 with his mouth wide open. Understand the stable is down hook, line and sinker in Houston. SALONA, which finished third getaway day at Arlington is right bang up and should be benefited. Then comes another sleeper, LITTLE ASBESTOS, with SENATOR SETH close up. Let your conscience be your guide.

AVIOS, which will have Heigle in the pilot house, has a call of four and one half points in the day's opener. Now too much gab has been known to spoil the soup. Go get yours—in Hunks.

EARL OF WARWICK, which I believe a bit better than ordinarily rated, is taken to bring home all the bacon in the sixth. Fair sort of hide. You have the answer in your lily white duke.

Over at Fort Erie, MACMAXIM, a rather consistent plater, is taken to cop the long end of the third. They do tell me Kansas City and Toronto are loaded. Enuf.

HANDIWORKER, from the Seagram Stable, should repeat that last good effort. As a matter of fact this trick is just getting good. The stable thought this one of near-stake caliber—earlier in the season. There was also some activity over night on PAT CALHOUN. You have the info for what it is worth.

NATS - TIGERS IN FINAL TODAY

Johnson Is Undecided on Pitcher; Harris Uses Carroll.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE Nationals and Tigers end their series here this afternoon in the last Washington appearance of Johnson's team until August 27, following stops at New York and Boston before the Nats go West on their final swing through that sector. Manager Bucky Harris stated last night that he planned to use Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross hurler, on the bill, while Johnson said he did not know to whom he would turn over his mound duties.

Carroll pitched to but one batter in the second game yesterday. Johnson has no available hurlers who are physically fit and well rested and will have to ask either Brown, Hadley or Thomas, each of whom saw action yesterday, to do a comeback.

Immediately after today's game, the Nats will hustle to the Union Station for a train which gets them in the "Big Town" late tonight for the players will have to get up early tomorrow because of a double-header being listed with the Yankees on this one-day stop. Only two single games will be played in Boston, the Nats traveling Friday to St. Louis, where they open their Western invasion on Saturday.

Jack Hayes' homer in the fifth inning of yesterday's second game was one of those "for the book." It was a liner to center, but Centerfielder Harry Rice was looking for the ball in the air, having lost it in the sun, even after it had passed him. Meanwhile, Hayes was doing some fancy footwork on the sacks, with Myer and West ahead of him, to earn himself a new winter overcoat.

Roy Spencer, who has done some nifty pegging since Manager Johnson has been using him more frequently behind the bat, helped Braxton out of a hole in the first inning of the opener when he tossed out Harry Rice at third on the front end of an attempted double theft, as Harry Heilmann swung at a third strike.

In the next canto, the Nats came through with another two-ply swat with two Tigers on the sacks. This time the Cronin to Myer to Judge combination came to the rescue. The home team made two more double plays later in the game.

AZTECS AND ST. JOES WIN UNLIMITED FEATURES

Hawks Prove Easy for Saints

Bow, 13-4, as Auth's Lose to Aztecs by 7 to 4 Count.

Dixie Pigs and Cards Profit From Forfeit Decisions.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

AS THE Miller Aztecs turned back the Auths yesterday, 7 to 4, and the St. Joseph A. C. conquered the Brentwood Hawks, 13 to 4, while the Dixie Pigs and Press Cards were profiting by forfeit decisions, the title race experienced a slight shifting of the teams but the selection of a champion is still as distant.

The Brentwood Hawks lost the league lead enabling the Press Cards and Dixie Pigs to assume the top position on even terms. The Hawks, Aztecs and St. Joes are now tied for fourth place with the Authmen just a half game to the rear and just one game behind the pacemakers.

By trouncing the Tremonts in a free-hitting engagement, the Brown's Cornermen got back on even terms and are now two games behind the leaders. The Edmonds Art Stone Co. Team failed to muster nine players and forfeited to the Dixie Pigs. The Brown-Tremont contest was of the free-hitting variety, ending 12 to 8. The Press Cards were idle but were awarded a win over the Capitols.

Dick Hughes Makes Bow With St. Joseph.

Dick Hughes, veteran of many local sandlot struggles, made his bow with the St. Joemen, holding the Hawks in check throughout while his mates hammered Ensor and Kopp into submission. Kopp and Hillary led their mates with the stick.

Peewee Walker invited the Astecs to victory. He yielded but four safeties and Joe Mulch clinched the verdict in the fifth with a home run with two men on the paths. Rhodes had two bad rounds for the losers.

Fischer's two home runs for the Tremonts featured that contest. Newman pitched and hit his team to victory. One of his four blows was good for the circuit trip, but he was ruled out for missing second.

O'Brien Juniors Win Over Lionels in 10-Inning Fray

Vics Down Ty Cobbs, 2 to 0; Potomacs Bow to Calhouns, 2 to 1; Langleys Run Wild to Rout Murphy-Ames.

SPIRITED pitchers' duels featured the junior schedule of the Capital City League yesterday. The O'Briens kept their record clean by beating the Lionels, 6 to 5, in ten innings. The Vics also kept their record unblemished by turning back the Ty Cobbs 2 to 0, while the Calhouns were getting a 2-to-1 verdict over the Potomacs.

The Langleys upset the run of things by completely routing the Murphy-Ames Nine, 19 to 9. The winners went wild in the closing innings, coming from behind to pile up a big advantage.

As a result of yesterday's games, the O'Briens and Vics remain the only undefeated contenders. The Langleys jumped into third place, shoving the Lionels down the list. The Calhouns scored their first victory to create a four-team tie for fourth place. Murphy-Ames is the only team boasting a victory now.

Lionels Come From Behind But Lose in 10th.

Hungerford and Kramer waged a grueling mound duel in the O'Brien-Lionel contest. Neither shaded the other's offerings to a great advantage. The losers came from behind to tie the score in the eighth, only to yield in the extra round. Cassassa, Westenholm, Via, McPherson and Tabler starred at bat.

Medler held a slight advantage over Best in the Calhoun-Potomac battle. Medler allowed but 3 hits. Potomacs led until the sixth when both Calhoun tallies were scored.

A pass to Evans and successive hits by Harrison, Milstead and Kessler enabled the Vicmen to count their runs. Dick Lanham hurled effectively for the winners, yielding 3 hits, two of which were credited Devers, who worked well for the losers.

THE DOUBLE

By EDGAR WALLACE

SYNOPSIS.

Dick Staines, in love with beautiful Mary Dane, a nurse, concludes that the girl has a dangerous double when he mistakes her for a mysterious intruder in Walter Derrick's house. The double, he later discovers, is Mary Devilliers, of Cape Town, Africa; but what she seeks in the house, where one murder has already been committed remains a mystery. With the sweet confession of Mary's love for him still ringing in his ears, Dick learns that Mary is to marry his intimate friend, Tommy Weale. Bewildered, uncertain still as to Mary's identity and conduct, Dick sees her again, and is again impressed with her sincerity. "I'm in such a horrible, terrible mess, Dick dear," she tells him, and Dick feels a stab of pain as he remembers that he has set a man to watch her.

CHAPTER XXIII.

He was not particularly startled, he was not even surprised. He gave Dick the impression that nothing in the world had ever succeded in agitating him.

"Good afternoon, sir."

His voice was soft and deferential. He had a queer little droop of his head that was almost like a bow.

"This is a beautiful place. To me the river is even more interesting than the sea. Look at that tug and those barges, like a swan with a number of ugly ducklings! One wonders what sort of life these bargemen live."

"When you have finished being philosophical Henry, will you tell me why you are in London, and what poor Mr. Cornfort is doing in the meantime, to say nothing of Miss Dane?"

The Bath chairman looked at him reproachfully.

"Mr. Cornfort is in bed," he said in a hushed voice. "I fear he may never use the Bath chair again."

"As bad as that, eh?" said Dick cheerfully. "Well, you can't live forever."

Henry was pained.

"And Miss Dane?"

Henry shook his head.

"She is in town, sir, making inquiries about something she lost in London. An inconsiderable trinket, but very precious to her. Young girls have their peculiar fancies, Mr. Staines, and it is difficult to plumb the minds of youth."

Dick was amused, a little irritated, too. He had a feeling that this man was secretly laughing at him.

"And who is looking after Mr. Cornfort?" he demanded.

Henry's face fell.

"Three trained nurses," he said in a hushed voice.

Dick looked around at the arched entrance to Scotland Yard.

"Is she in there?"

"I believe so, sir."

"But that isn't the place she would go to make inquiries about lost property. It is farther along." He pointed.

Henry followed the direction of his finger and seemed interested in the low-roofed building the gesture indicated.

"Is that so, sir?" he asked interestedly. "I'm afraid Miss Dane has only a rudimentary acquaintance with police procedure. I have an idea that her loss was of such importance that she was seeking an interview with the chief constable."

Dick gaped at him.

"With the chief constable? Bourke?"

Henry nodded.

"She is a peculiar young lady who invariably makes it her business to go to the fountainhead."

Dick examined the man carefully, but the blue eyes met his scrutiny with the least effort at evasion.

"You speak rather nicely for a Bath chairman," said Dick. "Where were you before you engaged in this profession?"

Henry for a moment looked embarrassed and coughed behind his gloved hand. Dick noticed that, as he raised his hand, his action was stiff and that he winced. He wondered what had happened to his arm.

"In my youth I was a professional prizefighter," he said, and Dick was staggered. "It is rather difficult to believe that a man of my meager physique could have ever had any success in such an arduous profession," said Henry, speaking with the greatest precision, "and in order to tone down the shock I would explain to you that I was also a teacher of mathematics at a very honorable university. I found pugilism was more lucrative, though it was somewhat disastrous to my scholastic career."

"A lightweight?" asked Dick, unconvinced.

"A featherweight," said Henry gravely. "I am the only man who ever knocked out Digger Bill Ferrers. He fell asleep in the thirteenth round and was never the same man afterward."

Dick looked at the man suspiciously. Was his leg being pulled by this mild dragger of Bath chairs? Before he could ask a question he saw Mary Dane come into view. She was walking quickly, but checked her pace at the sight of the detective. Henry regarded their meeting with great imperturbability. Dick had the suspicion that he was mildly amused.

"I suppose Henry's told you the news about Mr. Cornfort?"

"Is he dead?" asked Dick brutally, and she looked at him reproachfully.

"How brutal you are! Of course he isn't. The poor old man is in bed."

"And you've come up to Scotland Yard to make an inquiry about a——"

"Whatever Henry told you it was," she interrupted calmly enough. "Please don't cross-examine me on the King's highway! I think your Mr. Bourke is rather a darling."

"I will convey your views to him," said Dick.

She was looking at him thoughtfully, biting that red nether lip of hers, and then:

"Thank you, Henry, you needn't wait. Mr. Staines is taking me to tea at Sollinger's. Let's walk through the park—I like parks."

"So I understand," said Dick.

He looked back over his shoulder. Henry was still standing where they left him, his contemplative eye on the river.

"Where's his Bath chair?" he demanded. "I should have thought that he would at least have brought that interesting mustard-colored vehicle to town—he looks almost naked without it! I should have loved to see you both being held up by a traffic cop!"

"You're being rather unpleasant this afternoon," she said. "I never use Bath chairs. I am taking you away from your work, which is selfish of me—but I'm not feeling a bit penitent."

"You are my work," he said, "and my worry."

He did not provoke her to a reply.

They crossed to Whitehall, into the Park gates, and their walk slowed to a saunter, which is a pace appropriate to parks.

"How is the ghost?" she asked as they lounged along the edge of the lake.

"Not so well," said Dick. "He has given up his Bath chair and has taken to bed."

"You mean Mr. Cornfort? How absurd you are!"

"I meant the gun-laying ghost."

"Did they nearly get you? My dear, I was worried ill that night! I hope you will never feel as I did. It was horrid!"

"What made you think there was a spring gun in the house?"

"Instinct," she said, and he knew that she was speaking the truth. "I suppose when a woman feels—as I do towards a man, her intelligence is sharpened to a point where instinct gets a chance of operating. I thought I would die as I sat by that telephone waiting to hear your voice. Dick, you're not taking any more chances?"

"As a matter of fact, I am."

She stopped dead and looked at him, her lips parted, her eyes wide with fear.

"What do you mean?"

"Mr. Derrick is coming back to live here, and he has asked me to sleep on the premises."

She said nothing, but slowly resumed her walk.

"When do you go in?"

"Tomorrow, I think—Tommy hasn't said when he's returning," and then, as he remembered—"he is probably in town."

She shook her head.

"No. I told him I was coming back tonight."

"And aren't you?"

She hesitated.

"Henry rather wanted to see a theater, and I promised him he should." And then she went off at a tangent "I like your Inspector Bourke—superintendent, is he?—well, whatever he is! He's a nice fat darling of a man. He was very severe at first, but we became quite good friends."

"What did you see him about?"

"I lost a bangle," she said. "Why do you make me lie? I saw him about the bomb throwing. As a matter of fact, he wrote to me and asked me to come to see him. I suppose you know the municipality of Eastbourne has offered a reward of £200?"

NEWS FROM MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

REHEARING GRANTED IN LIMESTONE CASE

Virginia Commission Notified to Prepare for Session in Capital September 10.

NEW RATES SUSPENDED

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 4.—The State corporation commission has received notice from the Interstate Commerce Commission that its efforts to secure a reopening of the limestone case, I. C. C. docket 19953, sub No. 1, have been successful and a rehearing will be had in the office of the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington September 10 before Attorney-Examiner Hosmer.

The complaint in docket 19943, sub No. 1, was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission July 25, 1927, by the North American Cement Corporation, attacking the rates on all kinds of lime and ground limestone, from Berkeley and Martinsburg, W. Va., as being too high, and also claiming that rates in Virginia were so low that it could not ship from Berkeley and Martinsburg into Virginia.

Rates Low at First.

The limestone rates in Virginia were established in 1911 as the result of a conference between the Governor of Virginia, the State corporation commission and representatives of the railroads. The rates at that time were made as low as possible to permit the farmers to secure limestone. In 1920 the Interstate Commerce Commission ordered a general 40 per cent increase in all rates in the United States. The State commission did not permit this increase to apply on the Virginia limestone rates.

The lime rates in the South were put on a new basis by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and in September, 1928, the carriers applied to the State Corporation Commission for authority to put the new scale in effect in Virginia. The commission denied the carriers' application at that time because of increases that would result in the agricultural lime rates.

The Interstate Commerce Commission in Docket 19943, Sub No. 1, ordered into effect in Virginia, the same scale on lime as applied in the South generally, and also ordered an increase on Virginia intrastate limestone rates, to become effective September 3, 1929. The reopening of this case will suspend the effective date of the new rates until some time after the September 10 hearing.

State Rates Defended.

At the hearing in Washington in December, 1928, the State commission defended the Virginia rates, claiming that the North American Cement Corporation had not proven that with higher Virginia rates it could ship into Virginia.

After the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission was received the State Corporation Commission immediately filed a petition for a rehearing, calling the Interstate Commerce Commission's attention to the necessity of the use of ground limestone to the successful production of crops in Virginia, due to the acidity of the soil and other conditions, and to the financial condition of farmers and the need of relief. The petition was denied. The State Corporation Commission again presented a petition for rehearing, which has been granted and the case reopened.

Winchester Residents Share Woman's Estate

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 4.—The will of Mrs. Mary Sidwell Appleby, widow of Samuel Appleby, Baltimore druggist, who died here last week, leaves $1,000 each to Mrs. Mary P. Stabler and Mrs. Elizabeth P. Turner, daughters of Arthur Phillips, Loudoun County, Va.; $1,000 to Mrs. Mattie J. Babcock, of Baltimore, niece of Mr. Appleby; $2,500 each in trust to John Warren Rice and Elizabeth Rice, children of Warren Rice, here; $400 to Mount Hebron Cemetery trustees for upkeep of Conway and Sidwell lots, and the remainder in trust for Mrs. Mary C. Rice, widow of John W. Rice, this city, for her lifetime, after which it goes to the two children of Warren Rice.

Warren Rice, executor, gave $48,000 bond.

Sign Advertising Still Found in Liquor Raid

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 4.—Some of the moonshiners of Frederick County believe in advertising, even if done at their own risk. Sheriff Pannett, who returned last night from a raiding expedition, brought with him a large painted sign reading "Coal Mine Distilling Co.," which he took from a building near Brush Creek, far back in the mountains. He and his deputies also had Eldridge Sibols, whom they said they found in the act of distilling liquor. He was released on $500 bail for the October grand jury.

The officers confiscated a 75-gallon still, eight barrels of mash, a large quantity of sugar, several gasoline stoves and four gallons of red-hot liquor, just out of the till.

Winchester Man Wins Army Camp's Mile Race

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 4.—William Bentley Kern, returning today from the citizens' military training camp, at Fort Eustis, Va., brought with him a medal for winning the mile race in the athletic events held there during closing days of the camp. He made the run in five minutes and six seconds against a large field, and came in 20 yards ahead of his nearest competitor.

Kern, a graduate of Handley High School, here, won the mile run last spring at the annual track meet of the Cumberland Valley Athletic League, held here. Two years ago Kern landed in sixth place in the mile race at Fort Eustis and last year he was second

Rites for Charles Seal To Be Conducted Today

Winchester, Va., Aug. 4.—The body of Charles E. Seal, 80, pioneer Winchester plumbing contractor and first to introduce modern bathroom appliances in this section many years ago, who died Friday in Montreal, Canada, will be interred here tomorrow afternoon, with rites by the Improved Order of Red Men. Surviving are a widow, formerly Miss Rohr; one son, Fred Seal, Baltimore, and two daughters, Mrs. Charles E. Haines, Montreal, and Mrs. Della Barr, Baltimore. He was a brother-in-law of the late Charles C. Holmes, Charles Town, W. Va., a former supervising architect of the Treasury Department.

Public Utilities Valuation Is Cut

Figures in Berkeley County for Taxation Purposes Reduced $29,791.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 4.—Public untillities valuation in Berkeley County, for use in the next tax period, have been cut $29,791, according to figures received at the county courthouse. Distribution of the cut over the districts will not be announced until the boards sit August 13, to make their estimates for the year. The total valuation of the utilities for the county this year is $6,878,393 as against $6,906,184 last year. The heaviest cut was in the Cumbreland Valley Railroad, which was reduced $100,000. The biggest increase was in the valuation of the Baltimore & Ohio, $41,765.

The State tax this year will be 6 cents higher than last, 5 cents having been added for completion of the State Capitol at Charleston, under 1929 legislative authorization and 1 cent more on the general levy, which raises the general from 9 cents of last year to 10 cents, the figure for many years.

Potato Operators To Plan New Crop

Dealers in Four States Are to Meet at Norfolk Next Friday.

Special to The Washington Post.

College Park, Md., August 4.—A meeting of all potatoe operators in Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and South Carolina has been arranged by A. E. Merker, secretary of the interstate early potato committee to discuss plans for handling next year's potato crop from these States. The meeting will be held at the Naval Y. M. C. A. in Norfolk, Va., next Friday. Those composing the Maryland representatives of the interstate committee are: Dr. T. B. Symons, director, and Dr. F. B. Bomberger, assistant director, extension, University of Maryland, College Park; W. H. Holloway, Newark, and W. C. Cullen, Pocomoke.

The committee intends to consider the seed situation for the 1930 crop at the meeting, as it exists in the four States, and it will endeavor to show the dealers why it would be best to purchase only sufficient seed to cover about 75 per cent of their needs, on 1929's purchase basis. Such subjects as "The 1930 Early Potato Stabilization," "The Seed Potato Situation," and "Financing the 1930 Early Potato Crop" will be brought up for discussion at that time and any others which may seem of importance or interest to the members of the committee or the attending operators.

The interstate early potato committee was organized in 1928 for the purpose of stabilizing the potato acreage and more intelligently and systematically deposing of the annual potato crop of the four southeastern States named.

Old Folks' Sing Is Held In Church Near Luray

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Aug. 4.—"The Old Folks Sing," for many years promoted by Representative J. A. Garber, was held yesterday at Mount Zion Church, four miles south of Luray. Hundreds were present from Rockingham, Shenandoah, Augusta, Frederick and Page Counties. The services were conducted by hundreds of old time singers and song writers from the five counties.

The "sing" is a yearly occurrence in one of the five counties. For two years it has been held with Mount Zion Church. "Tuning forks"—some of them more than a century old—were used by many.

Charles Town Home Is Destroyed by Fire

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 4.—The dwelling of Stanley S Ring, at Middleway, near here, was destroyed by fire this afternoon, causing a loss of $1,500 with $150 insurance.

The home of the late Dr. A. M. Evans nearby was badly damaged. Both Charles Town Fire Departments responded and by hard work saved other homes.

HOG-CALLING TEST TO BE FAIR FEATURE

Plans Nearing Completion for Tri-County Event at Culpeper.

OPENS ON SEPTEMBER 2

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Aug. 4.—Arrangements are virtually completed for the ninth annual Cupeper and Adjoining Counties Fair, to be held here September 2, 3 and 4. Although it is held in Culpeper this is "The Fair" for the adjoining counties of Madison and Rappahannock, both of these counties being represented on the board of directors and providing many exhibitors.

A wide range of classes, with liberal prizes for winners, offers openings for everyone to enter something whether it be calves and cakes, or pickles and babies.

In addition to the usual county fair events, there is to be a horse shoe pitching tournament and a hog-calling contest, with cash prizes offered in both. In the latter event many factors are to be consideerd by the judges.

Volume will count heavily as the caller's voice must carry to the hogs feeding far away, and then a good strong call serves to notify the neighbors that the hog raiser is at home on the job. Variety must be considered, for the hogs soon would tire of hearing the same old call day after day. Then, too, there must be sufficient originality for the porker to recognize his master's voice, and sufficient charm to draw him from a shady spot to the caller.

J. C. Eller, county agent, will have charge of a special department for boys' and girls' agricultural clubs. Eller has organized 4-H Clubs throughout the county and it is expected his department will have a large number of entries, especially in the dairy breeds.

Other departmental heads are: Agriculture, Mrs. Elisabeth Finks; horticulture, Mrs. Susie Scott Garr; beef cattle, Robert Tinsley; dairy cattle, M. A. Mahoney; draft horses and mules, Marvin Inskeep; horse racing, P. M. Browning; swine, Marshall Colvin; sheep and goats, Harvey Heflin; poultry, Frank Lewis; dogs, William Bywaters; canned goods, Miss Martha Colvin; baking, Mrs. Frank Lewis; domestic manufacture, Miss Virginia Tinsley; school booths, R. R. Tolbert; flowers, Miss Burma Bowie, and horse shoe pitching, J. C. Albright.

Dry Clubwoman Turns Down Post

Mrs. Nicholson Refuses to Act on Prohibition Reform Council.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, Md., president of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League, has declined an invitation from Mrs. Charles H. Sabin to act on the National Advisory Council of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, according to an exchange of correspondence made public yesterday.

"I know the women throughout the country are more anxious to reform the bootleggers' victims than they are for prohibition reform, and the only women opposed to national prohibition are women who have some pecuniary motives," said Mrs. Nicholson in her reply.

She added, "May I ask, why you, as a national Republican committeewoman, supported a 'dry' President last fall if you entertained the same views then that you do at present? Who is back of your movement and who is financing same, and why? I know there are not enough women throughout the Nation who want booze returned that they are willing to finance so huge an undedtaking."

WalkingWonder of Page County Succumbs at 89

Luray, Va., Aug. 4.—Fifteen years ago Jesse Shuff, then living in Ohio, declared that he wanted to "come back to Virginia to die within sight of boyhood scenes." Yesterday he was buried in Powells Fort, 8 miles west of Luray. He was 89 years of age and was known as "the walking wonder of Page and Shenandoah Counties."

Despite his age Mr. Shuff for many years has been walking from Page County to Powells Fort, Shenandoah County, the trips embracing 14 miles and crossing the Massanutten Mountains. He declared that he was given zest for the walking by drinking "draughts of air from the top of the Massanutten Mountains on each trip." The trips never occasioned fatigue. At the end of each he had the springiness and agility of a boy. He was widely known throughout the Shenandoah Valley and was a member of one of the oldest families of Pagee and Shenandoah Counties.

Millions of Fish Killed by Poison

Acid Waste From Tannery Is Blamed for Damage in Cheat River.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 4.—Indignant because millions of fish have been killed in the Cheat River, a famous fishing stream known as a West Virginia paradise, sportsmen of the Clarksburg district today began steps to bring about prosecution and damage suits in behalf of the State against those responsible.

Reports received from residents of the Cheat section last night stated that the fish between Parsons and Seven Islands had been exterminated by a poisonous acid waste from a tannery.

Rotting fish covered the stream and its banks, it was stated, while farmers had to haul them away in wagons as a sanitary measure. Warnings against use of the river water have been issued by health officers and game wardens.

Mission Is Ransacked Near Harpers Ferry

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Aug. 4.—Mountain Mission, an Episcopal school, near here, was ransacked by unidentified persons early yesterday evening while those in charge were absent.

Jefferson County officers were called, found the furniture much disarranged but were told nothing, so far as could be determined, had been stolen.

Six Hurt as Auto Skids on Roadway

Machine Driven by Church Hill Woman Turns Over and Is Wrecked.

Special to The Washington Post.

Church Hill, Md. Aug,. 4.—Mrs. James Hall, her two young daughters and their three young guests were injured when a large sedan driven by Mrs. Hall skidded on the State highway near here during a rainstorm last night, turned turtle and was wrecked. Though the occupants escaped without serious injuries, all were bruised and sustained lacerations and minor cuts.

In the car were Martha Hall, 14, and her sister, Anna, aged 6; two daughters of Frank Price, of Centerville, aged 17 and 15, and Billy Gould, of Baltimore, son of Harry Gould. One of the Price girls suffered severe injuries to her foot. The party was returning from Chestertown to the Hall home near here.

ALEXANDRIA MASONS PLAN TEMPLE RITES

REUNION IS SCHEDULED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

One of the biggest events in the history of the local Scottish Rite Masonic bodies will be held the week of October 14 with the conferring of degrees on a class at the fall reunion in the George Washington National Memorial Masonic Temple here. It will be the first ceremonial of any kind in the temple, which is now well on its way to completion. Secretary Percy E. Clift, of the local bodies, has just announced that permission to confer degrees on a class in the new temple has been granted by Louis A. Watres, president of the memorial association, and that Robert S. Crump, sovereign grand inspector general of the Scottish Rite bodies in Virginia, has given his approval.

The annual session of the supreme council of Scottish Rite Masons will be held at this time in the House of the Temple on Sixteenth street, Washington, and it is expected that supreme council members will have complete charge of the conferring of the thirty-second degree. Secretary Clift also plans to have a number of members of Congress, who are active in Scottish Rite degree work, confer one or more of the higher degrees, and some announcement as to this will be given out later.

In order to complete arrangements for the fall reunion, and to make this affair the biggest in the local Scottish Rite bodies' history, Secretary Clift is planning to call a meeting, either at the local headquarters or some other central point, of the secretaries of the Scottish Rite lodges in this district, which includes Falls Church, Manassas, Strasburg, Harrisonburg, Front Royal, Winchester, Middletown, Middleburg, Culpeper, Fredericksburg, Orange and several other Virginia towns. At this session plans for the forming of a big class will be discussed, along with the program for entertainment of the visiting members.

Members of Potomac Lodge, No. 38, Odd Fellows, will leave today for a visit to Charity Lodge, Warrenton, Va., when they will make presentation to the lodge of that place of the traveling gavel. The party will leave Odd Fellows Hall on North Columbus street at 6:30 o'clock in the evening, and make the trip in automobiles.

The annual sermon at the seventy-ninth annual session of the Potomac Association, which will be held at the Marshall Baptist Church, Marshall, Va., Wednesday and Thursday of this week, will be preached by the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, of the Temple Baptist Church of this city. The association represents churches in the counties of Fauquier, Loudoun, Prince William, Arlington, Fairfax, Stafford and Culpeper, and the City of Alexandria.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary P. Tarbutton, wife of C. W. Tarbutton, who died Saturday, will be conducted at the residence, 110 Warren avenue, Aurora Hills, at 11 o'clock this morning, and the body will be taken to Riverton, Va., today for interment.

The body of Mrs. R. V. Pemberton, wife of Dr. R. V. Pemberton, who died Saturday at her home on Timber Branch drive, Braddock Heights, will be taken today to Staunton, for interment in Thornhill Cemetery there.

Arrested Man's Doe Increased by Collision

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 4.—Attachment suit has been instituted in the circuit court here by Edward Stratton, colored, of Amherst County, against Thomas G. Magee, colored, who was arrested here last week and taken to Atlantic City in connection with a charge of theft of $15,000 worth of jewels there.

Suit is for $2,621 and the claim grew out of Stratton's car being demolished Friday in Amherst County when Magee, who was driving a detective to New Jersey, ran into Stratton's car. Attachment was served on the car at a local garage.

Lynchburg Man Promoted.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 4 (Special.). P. L. Earp, who has been engaged in the insurance business here nearly twenty years, has been made vice president and general manager for Virginia of the Providence Relief Insurance Co. of Washington, and will go to Richmond about September 1 to take up his work there.

NEW CHURCH USED BY SUNDAY SCHOOL

University Baptist Edifice Was Recently Completed in Charlottesville.

DEDICATION IS PLANNED

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 4.—The Sunday school of the High Street Baptist Church held its session this morning in the University Baptist Church, just completed at a cost of $225,000, and designed with special reference to work among students at the University of Virginia. Formal opening services will be held Sunday, August 10.

Members of the Sunday school met at the High Street church at 9 o'clock and proceeded in motor cars to the new edifice, on West Main street, two blocks from the eastern entrance to the grounds of the university. They returned to the High Street Church for preaching services at 11 o'clock.

The University Baptist Church was erected by the congregation of the High Street Church, in cooperation with the Baptist Board of Missions and Education of the State of Virginia. The building is one of the most imposing in the city. It faces the spacious park containing the monument to Lewis and Clark, donated to the City of Charlottesville by Paul Goodloe McIntire.

While the first preaching service is scheduled to be held in the new edifice today week, the formal dedication of the building will be delayed until early fall soon after the opening of the next session of the University of Virginia. An interesting program for the dedicatory exercises is being arranged. These will extend over one week, during which addresses will be delivered by leading members of the denomination in the South.

Primary Contest Stirs Petersburg

Whether Mapp or Pollard Will Carry Town Is the Question of Hour.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 4.—Tuesday next will witness the most interesting election that has been held in this city for many years and the largest vote in the history of Petersburg will be polled. Such is the interest in the political contest that little else has been talked of for the last month or more on the streets and other public places. The question now is: Will Mapp or Pollard carry Petersburg? The supporters of each apparently are confident their favorite candidate will be the winner.

Circulation in Petersburg of dummy ballots, purporting to show the proper method of marking the ticket in the Democratic primary Tuesday, has brought from the electoral board of Petersburg a statement that it is unlawful to circulate such dummy ballots and that no one can lawfully aid another person in marking a ballot.

The contest for city treasurer which office is now filled by J. J. Nelms, and that of clerk of the courts, filled by Robert G. Bass, is one of the hottest political contests ever known here. Nelms is opposed by I. Val Parham, a member of the city council, and Bass by Ernest N. Townes, a young lawyer.

Veteran of World War Is Buried at Lynchburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 4.—Committal service for Fred M. Luck, 40, World War veteran, who died at the Davis Clinic Hospital, Marion, Friday, took place this afternoon in the American Legion plot at Spring Hill Cemetery. He was with the 29th division in France.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen Campbell Luck, of this city; a son, Alfred M. Luck, of Lynchburg; his father, Nathan Luck, of Bedford County; two brothers, Arthur Luck, of Richmond, and Joseph Luck, of Bedford, and a sister, Mrs. Floyd Wells, of Bedford.

Barton Man Dies In Auto Collision

Five Women and Two Men Are Slightly Hurt as Car Turns Over.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 4.—Gordon Durst, about 60, postmaster at Barton, this county, was killed early this evening in a head-on auto collision six miles south of Bedford, Pa., where he had spent the day. His machine turned over when he met a car driven by W. R. Schindledecker, of Altoona, Pa. Durst's head was crushed.

With him were his sisters, Misses Selmeda and Edna Durst, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry Meek, of Barton. They were slightly injured. Mrs. Schindledecker and Mrs. Anna Jones, in the Schindledecker car, were badly cut and bruised and were taken to the Timmins Hospital at Bedford. Schindledecker and John Hoffman, son-in-law of Mrs. Jones, were slightly hurt.

The Altoona party had been visiting in Bedford. The blame for the accident has not yet been fixed. Durst was a Presbyterian and Knight of Pythias.

Four Are Injured In Auto Collision

Vehicle Driven by Woman and Theater Man's Car Crash in Virginia.

Special to The Washington Post.

Betterton, Md., Aug. 4.—Littleton Moore, manager of the Mastbaum Theater, Philadelphia, figured in an automobile accident last night while motoring to spend the week-end with his family at this Chesapeake Bayside resort. His car collided with one driven by Mrs. Roland Crew, who was motoring to Middletown, Del., to meet her husband, who is a Pennsylvania Railroad civil engineer in Pittsburgh.

The new car she was driving met Moore's machine head-on. Mrs. Samuel G. Roseberry, her sister-in-law, a passenger in the car, suffered a broken leg, cuts on the eyes and severe lacerations on the body. Her 75-year-old mother, Mrs. H. L. Crew, had a broken wrist and possible internal injuries. The driver escaped with a badly cut lip. Moore was unhurt.

The accident occurred near the town of Stillpond, and the injured were treated by Dr. Lewis P. Attwell, of that town. Both cars were badly damaged. A 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Roland Crew had painful face injuries.

Heavy Lynchburg Vote Is Predicted

Race for Prosecutor Seen as Exceeding Governor's in Interest.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 4.—Interest in the three-cornered fight for nomination for Commonwealth's attorney among R. D. Yancy, incumbent for 30 years; W. T. Spencer, jr., and E. Thurman Boyd, will it is predicted, cause a much larger vote at Tuesday's primary in Lynchburg than would have been attracted to the polls by the gubernatorial fight. For this reason it is expected that the vote will be much larger than was looked for a week ago.

Boyd and Spencer have been very active in their personal work and during the past few days have been able to interest many of their friends to go to work in their behalf.

Although Mapp carried Lynchburg four years ago, supporters of Pollard now are predicting that Pollard will carry the city by several hundred votes, at least.

Mrs. Mary A. Butler Dies.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 4 (Special.). Mrs. Mary Albert Butler, 70, died Friday night at her home, the residence of her son-in-law, J. R. Todd, Chesterfield County, near the court house. She was a native of Albemarle County and a daughter of the late John and Liza Winn Morrison, of Albemarle County. Mrs. Butler is survived by the following children: Mrs. E. E. Staples, of Colonial Heights; Miss Jessie C. Butler, Mrs. Harold Bloom and Winn D. Butler.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

PALACE

"THE WONDER OF WOMEN." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sound picture, with dialogue sequences, adapted from Hermann Suderman's "The Wife of Stephen Tromholt," featuring Lewis S. Stone, Peggy Wood and Leila Hyams. Directed by Clarence Brown. Reviewed Saturday night.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Genius, no doubt, must have its eccentricity, but I am not sure that it needs to be always so bitter as that which tinctures the life of Stephan Tromholt in this drab tale of Suderman's. It seemed his perverse fate to cause most acute anguish to those he loved best and it was not until too late that he learned that this was so. Thus to the futility of a thwarted love is added a vein of exquisite pathos that does not contrive to number cheerfulness among the major virtues of this splendidly executed picture. It is, nevertheless, a subject that will linger in memory after many of its contemporaries have been forgotten.

"The Wonder of Women," a tawdry title for so forceful a drama, is the type of play that Leo Ditrichstein was accustomed to bring to the so-called legitimate stage. Its central figure is a composer who marries a middle-class wife in a moment of infatuation, while in Berlin there await him the adulation and the glamor that surround the unfettered and unconventional life of the triumphant creative artist. Irritated by the monotonous routine and rigid restrictions of the household presided over by his widow-bride, with three small children, he attempts to return to the glorious diva who has been his inamorata in the capital. The tragic death of his small stepson balks this plan. Ashamed of the tunes he grinds out to pay the family bills, he assumes the name of Franz Gehring. Once more he seeks to break away from the smothering responsibilities that are suffocating his talent, but now it is his wife, Brigitte, who dies. Not until he is a broken old man does he come to know that the simple melodies she had loved were the true flowering of his genius and that Gehring always was greater than Tromholt.

Notwithstanding that the motivation of the whirlwind courtship pursued during a short trip in a compartment of a railway train is flagrantly inadequate, and that no attempt is made ever to justify the sudden and inexplicable revulsions of feeling to which Tromholt is subject, there is a grip and a tug at the heart strings in the narrative that can not be gainsaid.

Lewis Stone, impeccably tailored and groomed, offers a portrayal of Tromholt-Gehring that is no less than masterful, despite the many unsympathetic qualities of the role. Audibility is all in his favor, excellent as he has always been in pantomime. Peggy Wood, as Brigitte, the wife, plays with a comprehensive intelligence to be expected from one who has achieved distinction in operetta, drama and literature. Her fine soprano is revealed in one short song. Leila Hyams, as the star of opera, lends further strength to the belief that she is a young actress of extraordinary promise.

Numerous names of note are included in the supporting cast, among them George Fawcett, Mack Swain, William Orlamond, Harry Myers and Sarah Padden.

On the stage, Herbert Rawlinson introduces a corps of principals and an ensemble that manage to make "Radio Romance" one of Jack Partington's most engaging productions in spite of the fact that it gets off to a slow start. Himself singing a chorus of "I'll Always Be In Love With You," with the syncopators, Mr. Rawlinson introduces Laura Lane, a singing danseuse; Ross and Edwards, singing comedians of the first water; Paul and Ferral, lightning tap dancers; Larry Adler and his harmonica and the Dave Gould girls in varied routines and setting-up exercises.

The M-G-M and Fox Movietone newsreels, orchestra and organ complete an entertainment of substantial merit.

EARLE

"THE TIME, THE PLACE AND THE GIRL." Warner Brothers all-talking film version of the musical comedy by Frank R. Adams and Will Hough, featuring Grant Withers, Betty Compson and Gertrude Olmstead. Directed by Howard Bretherton. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

It has been many years since I saw Cecil Lean and Florence Holbrook in the original of this out in the tiny La Salle Theater, in Chicago, where it ran interminably, but if I dare trust a hazy recollection, the Earle this week has all the best of it in the matter of enjoyable entertainment. The old story of the tricky investment broker and the young football star with an overplusage of S. A.—meaning sex appeal and not South America—is told in the ultra-modern, high-voltage wise-crackery of the present sophisticated era and, being particularly well dressed, appeals no less to the eye than to the ear.

Grant Withers, in the role of the gridiron star, who turns out to be not such a dub in the bond-selling racket after all, becomes important for the first time, ever to the best of my knowledge. His performance is breezy, amusing and authoritative. It is not possible to admire all of the egotism that has been written into the role, but it is impossible not to applaud Mr. Withers' skill in assuming it. Gertrude Olmstead, in the opposite but less conspicuous part of the stenographer who saves the day for her hero, is wholly adequate to the comparatively small demands made upon her, but Betty Compson, it seemed to me, was thoroughly artificial and unconvincing in most of what she essayed as the wife of the stock broker, whose crafty schemes she inadvertently aided in knocking into a cocked hat. After her splendid work in "On With the Show," her present portrayal comes as a distinct disappointment.

John Davidson does reasonably well in the stiff-necked character of Peter Ward, the broker who gives every one he meets a job in his office under the mellowing influence of what he has in the flask at the year's biggest football game, and Bert Roach is an agreeable foil as his star salesman. James Kirkwood, returning to the screen after a long absence, appears in only one brief introductory sequence. The other prominent feminine members of the cast include Vivian Oakland, Gretchen Hartmann and Irene Haisman.

The football crowd is much better pictured than the game itself, but the voice recording throughout is excellent and the dramatic movements of the action well directed.

Perhaps most notable among the supplementary attractions is the first release of the Paramount Sound News. No less a personage than President Hoover introduces this new medium of the articulate news event to the public in a brief colloquy with Adolph Zukor, president of Paramount, recorded in the White House grounds. The landing of the Army blimp TC-6 at the door of the Capitol to deliver Senator Bingham from Langley Field is another exclusive local shot of unique interest. There is still, however, something left to be hoped for in the matter of sound recording.

Two Vitaphone subjects are presented—the better of the two, the Norman Thomas Quintet in "Harlem-Mania," an interval of syncopated song, dance and instrumentalism, featuring a ne plus ultra trap drummer; the other, a domestic skit, "The Outlaw-in-law." The bill is completed by one of those absurdly ridiculous "Mickey Mouse" sound cartoons, this time called "The Plowboy."

"THE HOTTENTOT." Warner Brothers all-talking picture, from the stage play of the same name, featuring Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller. Directed by Roy Del Ruth. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by Mary Porter Russell.

This is not the first time "The Hottentot" has been played on the screen, but the present all-talking version of William Collier's and Victor Mapes' stage success has many advantages over the somewhat ancient silent one. An outright and combustible farce has less to lose and more to gain from audibility than perhaps any other type of film. There are no scenes of delicacy, pathos or impassioned love to be rendered impotent by possible mechanical defects, but there are situations galore of absurd and high-powered comedy which can reach the height of their hilarity only through use of the spoken word.

The adapters have seemingly utilized here frequent stretches of dialogue from the original work, and in addition to this there are completely devastating views of the steeplechase race and of the Hottentot in action that the stage could bring to its audience only through the comparatively tame method of description.

The Hottentot, for the benefit of those whose educations have been neglected, is a hores like which there has never been another. He is a horse that would delight in kicking old ladies and babies and stamping cripples to the ground. As for a timorous individual who would try to ride him to prove to his girl that he is as good a horseman as he is, in fact, a bad one—well, it's rather tough on the poor wretch. That's what Sam Harrington is. How could h know when he came down to Virginia to woo Peggy Fairfax that she and her air-minded associates would mistake him for H. Harrington, the famous horseman? He goes through with it, brave and cowardly deceiver that he is, steeplechase and all, and the sight of his agony is a joy.

The settings for all this are picturesque and in keeping, and Edward Everett Horton, as the horseman who has never 'horsed," contributes a delightfully nervous and tortured performance, including acrobatic meneuvers on, off and above the Hottentot's broad back. The steeplechase itself is magnificently done.

Patsy Ruth Miller appears engagingly as Peggy. The late Gladys Brockwell, Edward Earle, Stanley Taylor, Otto Hoffman and Douglas Gerrard compose the supporting cast.

The chief subsidiary for the week is a two-reel Vitaphone offering, "My People," featuring Eugene and Willie Howard, which has its start in a dramatic and ominous Russian setting and finishes up disconcertingly in a New York night club. Several of the songs would be worth hearing, were it not for the transpirings in between.

The newsreel and trailer announcement of Sophie Tucker in "Honky Tonk" are the only other auxiliaries.

FOX

"HARD BOILED ROSE." Warner Brothers sound picture with dialogue sequences, featuring William Collier, jr., and Myrna Loy. Directed by F. Harmon Weight. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

Since the characters in this story of high-stake gambling in New Orleans have nothing much to say, I suspect that the picture would have conveyed an effect slightly more advantageous to itself if it had remained inarticulate throughout its length instead of merely throughout occasional sequences of no vast importance. At best, the yarn would have fallen something short of conviction as an authentic human document.

It deals with events centering in a gilded den of iniquity conducted by a fond mother of a wayward son and a tough hombre in a tuxedo who insists upon playing Jefferson Duhamel's sense of "family honor" to the limit when that unfortunate investment broker's I. O. U.'s reach the $200,000 mark. There are some negotiable securities mixed up in the transaction and Mr. Duhamel's secretary is thrown into jail for theft when he assumes his boss' guilt to save his daughter from disgrace. But the daughter is a go-getter. What she does to the gambling house, the wayward son, the tough hombre in the tuxedo and Julie Malo, the head woman, is just too bad. So is the way she does it, at the foot of the stairs in her own home when she and Julie try to outsmart each other while passing a pearl
